SEVEN VALLEYS (York Co.) — With the south branch of the Codorus Creek wending its way around the farm, and a rail-trail running through the properties, if South Branch Farms Angus cattle are into fishing or hiking, they are in luck.

The purebred registered Angus herd, however, is not into recreational activities. The cattle are bred to work.

"We focus on what the beef industry needs, not the show ring or a certain genetic line," said Bob Livingston, farm manager of South Branch Farms.

"We've really tried to focus on the traits that are important to the industry — to breed good cattle that are relevant to the industry," he said.

Livingston has managed the operation for owner Bob Kinsley,

MANCHESTER (York Co.) — Patrons who walk to the back of the pizzeria have a full view of the pasture.

Softball players, as they stand in the outfield, can watch the cows graze.

Residents of a nearby apartment complex can see calves capering in the field.

Employees of the Starbucks Coffees Eastern Roasting and Distribution Center work in the facility which sits adjacent to the farm's fields.

Clearly, the Gross family of Manchester, York County, share their farm.

Although they live amidst industrial growth and residential development, however, the family's resolution to farm has not dimmed.

Cold Springs Farm includes parents Steven and Phyllis, who live in the home Steven grew up in. Their sons, Steve Jr. and Daniel, are joined by their spouses Becky and Tina and children. The farm also employs Allen

Farmers Finalize Resolutions For Bureau's State Meeting

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — A statewide committee of farmers wrapped up work in Camp Hill on resolutions that will go before the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) during the organization's 52nd annual meeting in Hershey, Nov. 18-20.

Issues for which Farm Bureau policy will be decided range from trade opportunities with Cuba to a requirement that buyers of homes near farms sign a disclosure notice acknowledging their proximity to accepted agricultural practices. Reforms to make local taxation more equitable and CATTLE· Compared to Thursday, lean slaughter cows sold steady to firm on a mixed supply. Conditions ranged from empty to full, with the recent colder weather definitely startihg to show on the weaker cows. Fleshier cows sold mostly weaker, with instances of 1 00 lower on the Breaking cow supply. Buyer attendance was very light, as it has been over the past month. There remains a steady flow of slaughter cows coming to town, with cow cutout values trending around steady, and demand remain about steady as well. Slaughter bulls sold steady to weak. The bull run was made up of mostly average quality stock, with the usual high dressers trading at a premium to the bulk. Slaughter cows made up nearly 42 percent of the run.

CALVES Compared to Thursday, veal calves sold steady to weak on a light test Holstein bull calves returning to the farm sold with a lower undertone. Bidding was only moderate to kick off the week, with buyers being very selective on the quality of the supply available. There were not enough Holstein heifers on offer for a market test.

SLAUGHTER CALVES· Good and Choice fancy 365 lb individual 80.00; 400-500 lbs 62.00-67.00, plainer quality 53.00-54.00; 500-550 lbs 44.00-48.00.

GOATS Compared to last week, Kid goats sold 5 00-10 00 lower. Lighter weight Yearlings sold weaker, with 80-100 lb Yearlings trading with a higher undertone A very large consignment of Yearlings late in the sale sold from 71.00-79 00 in very active bidding; and goes to show that there is still something to be said about raising higher quality goats. Nannies sold mostly 3.00-6.00 lower on a very plain supply. Wethers sold 4 00-10.00 lower, with Billies trading sharply lower. A few highly muscled Billies sold higher than last week's run as buyers are still interested in owning the good ones However, the quality of Monday's run was very mixed, with most of the goats very plain. Also, with nearly 1800 head on offer, the supply definitely outweighed the demand on all classes. Kids: Selection 1 20-40 lbs 36.00-44.00; pkg 55 lbs 62.00 Selection 2 20-40 lbs 26.00-34.00; package 50 lbs 42.00. Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold firm to .50 higher, with the bottom end of the Choice cattle trending as much as 1.00 higher. Tuesday's supply included several consignments of very well finished steers, with the finish on Monday's supply about average Bidding was relatively active on the bulk of the run, and very active on the higher quality stock. However, there is still room for improvement as the Western direct market moved 35-65 percent Choice steers at mostly 68.00 late last week. Which is important, as most local feeders are accustomed to a 2.00-3.00 premium when compared to the Western market; and rightfully so as the bulk of the Eastern-fed cattle stay on feed for greater periods than do the cattle in the larger feeding operations of the Midwest, which turns out a better finished product. Holstein steers sold steady to firm, as several hard-fed Holsteins drew very good buyer interest. The slaughter heifer supply was fairly light, although the few on hand sold steady to firm. Lean slaughter cows sold with a lower undertone, with Breaking and Boning cows trading sharply lower Buyer attendance was light, with the few on hand struggling to keep up with the 400 head supply. The fleshier cows suffered much worse than the lean cows, as bids were 2.00-4.00 lower. Slaughter bulls also trended lower on a very light run. The supply included 40 percent steers, 8 percent heifers, 46 percent cows 23 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

SLAUGHTER STEERS. High Choice and Prime 2-4 1230-1450 lbs 66.10-69.50, few 71.00-72.75. Few Yield grade 2 1030-2040 lbs 40.00-41.50, low dressing individual 37.75.

CALVES: Compared to last Tuesday, veal calves sold steady to 5.00 lower on a good supply, and fairly good buyer interest. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold sharply higher in very active bidding. After several weeks of very mixed bidding and buyer interest, buyers are procuring calves much more aggressively. Even the wet, cold rains could not cool off the bullish tone of Tuesday's auction. Holstein heifer buyers did not share the same attitude as the bull buyers, as heifer prices trended lower. Last week prices were in the upper 500.00 range, with this weeks' bids struggling to break the 500.00 barrier. The supply included 625 head in the state graded sale, with around 86 percent of the graded supply returned to feed

CATTLE: Compared to Tuesday, slaughter steers sold fully 1.00-2.00 higher. Bidding was extremely active early, tapering off slightly towards the end of the light run as quality tended to be lower. Buyers came in with their guns blazin', as bids matched the fancy supply blow for blow. Demand could have been supported by the lighter run, as Thursday's supply was over 200 head lighter than last weeks. However, with the direct feed yards moving their low Choice fats at 68.00, these longer and harder-fed eastern cattle should hold a premium to the Western market; this thinking was farmer supportive, and it doesn't hurt that the December live cattle contract at the CME is above 73.00, with the February contract sitting above 76.00. Slaughter heifer buyers also joined in as prices trended 1.00-2.00 higher on the attractive offering. It has been a while since a good run of fat heifers went through the ring, and it was a welcome change to see some well finished stock. Holstein steers sold firm to 1.00 higher as spillover from the colored cattle lent support. Holstein numbers were also higher, and with the increase there was also a noticeable increase in quality. Holstein weights were not extremely heavy, as they have been over the last few runs; and buyers took notice as they have a lot more use for the lighter carcasses. Lean slaughter cows sold firm to instances .50 higher, with Breaking and Boning cows trending up to 2.00 higher. Buyer attendance was very good, with bidding fairly active on the fleshier cows. The quality of Thursday's run was well below average, with buyers unwilling to procure the very low condition cows. Slaughter bulls trended higher when compared to Tuesday's very light test. Bull runs continue to include around 100 head, with bidding fairly active. The supply included 28 percent steers, 7 percent heifers, 41 percent cows, 8 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

CALVES: Compared to Monday, veal calves were not tested due to the very light early week supply. Holstein bull calves returning to the farm sold mixed, with 95-125 pounders trading with a lower undertone, and bulls under 95 lbs trending with a higher undertone. Due to the very light test on Monday, a Heifer trend could not be established late in the week. However, a lower undertone was noted on the bulk of the heifers, as prices failed to even scratch the surface of 500.00. The supply included 387 head in the state graded sale, with around 87 percent of the graded run going back on feed.

VEALERS: Standard and Good 90-110 lbs 25.00-35.00. Utility 55-90 lbs 15.00-25.00, weaker 11.00-15.00.

RETURNED TO FARM: Holstein bulls 95-125 lbs 85.00-97.00, mostly 95.00-97.00, few 100-105 lb bulls sold in the singles auction 115.00-122.00; 91 lbs 85.00; 87 lbs 90.00; 82 lbs 65.00. Plainer-type bulls 95-125 lbs 60.00-95.00; 90 lbs 62.00-86.00; 83 lbs 67.00-76.00. Beef-type bulls 95-105 lbs 80.00-95.00, fancy individual 120.00. New Holland Feeder Pig Auction
NEW HOLLAND, PA
November 6, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Receipts: 560 Last Week: 463 Year Ago: 378

Compared to last week, there were not enough pigs going back on feed to test the market; although on the few comparable lots, prices trended with a lower undertone. Slaughter pigs sold sharply lower in inactive bidding, and very light buyer interest. There were over 100 head more on the books when compared to last week, although the increase in numbers could not be linked to the lower bids; it was just a case of slaughter pig buyers not needing pigs to fill their immediate needs. The few feeder buyers on hand were cautious when procuring their pigs, as the slaughter hog market remains very unstable. Locally, finished hogs are bringing from 28.00-31.00; with the Western terminal markets moving their 220-270 pound hogs from 27.00-28.50. All pigs were weighed and graded on arrival and sold by the hundred weights.

New Holland Hog Auction
NEW HOLLAND, PA
November 4, 2002
Report Supplied By Auction

HOG RECEIPTS: 615 head, last Monday 519; last year 1200.

Compared to last Monday, barrows and gilts sold 2.00-4.00 higher; with hogs weighing over 300 lbs trending sharply higher in very active bidding, especially early. Buyer attendance was about like normal, although buyers were much more interested in procuring hogs than last week. The slaughter hog market remains very volatile with many unknowns in the equation. On one hand, terminal markets out West are again trading hogs this week from 27.00-30.00, after losses the week before. Also, the demand for pork seems to be keeping up with the supply as over 395,000 head of hogs hit kill floors across the U.S. every day last week. However, many Americans are gearing up for the holiday season as we clear the first week of November, and with that millions of pounds of turkey will be purchased for Thanksgiving consumption; leaving the demand for 'the other white meat in question.

National Broiler Market At A Glance
Atlanta, Ga.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trade sentiment was steady in the Midwest, steady to fully steady in the East and barely steady to weak in the West. Retail demand was light to moderate with feature activity aiding interest. Food service covered the full range, but was generally light to moderate overall. Supplies of 3 to 3.5 pound sizes were in good balance and well cleared in the East, generally sufficient in most other areas.In the parts structure, movement was slow to fair. Breast items ranged adequate to available. Wings and dark meat were at least adequate. In production areas, live supplies were moderate with weights desirable to heavy.

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day

Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening. Feed 6 wks. before freshening. 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)

Cows will clean better after freshening. Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitus problems. Great for reproduction tract and cows will cycle better after freshening. Will help rumen function over freshening. Less feet problems and less stress.

This is an over-all good booster if fed to dry cows, and it will pay you big dividends.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Lack of new export business and light technical selling on the Boards lent weakness to wheat and corn bids. However, soybean bids shot higher due to spillover strength from soy oil markets. Corn bids also saw light support from technical buying and export optimism. Wheat 4 to 9 cents lower. Corn mixed, 2 cents lower to 1 cent higher. Sorghum 2 cents higher. Soybeans 2 to 8 cents higher.

The Old Farmer's Almanac — This Week With Almanac

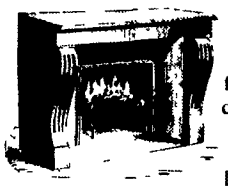
VETERANS DAY, NOV. 11

THE NORTH WIND DOTH BLOW . . .

If it was unseasonably cold at Halloween, then weather lore predicts a period of unseasonably warm weather, or Indian summer, around St Martin's (Nov. 11) until about November 20 Use the good weather for those last-minute winter preparations Have you had your chimney cleaned? Your furnace air ducts and filters checked? Is your wood all split, or as near to it as you're apt to get? If you're left with a few huge unsplittables, put aside the splitting wedge and maul, and think toward Christmas. Everyone needs a yule log of exemplary proportions . .



While we consider when to begin, it becomes too late.

TIP OF THE WEEK

TARRAGON GREEN BEANS

1 pound green beans
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 tablespoon butter
1 small clove garlic, minced
1/4 cup chopped scallions
2 tablespoons chopped fresh tarragon, or 2 teaspoons dried salt and pepper, to taste

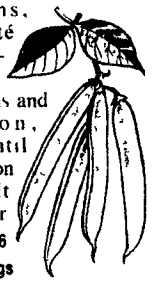
Remove tips from green beans and steam beans until just tender, about 5 minutes Drain well and cut beans in half Heat olive oil and butter in a skillet, add garlic and scallions, and sauté until softened Add beans and tarragon, sauté until hot Season with salt and pepper

Makes 4 to 6 servings



The Old Farmer's Weather Proverbs

OPINION

Upholding The Right To Farm

Guest Editorial
By Walt Peechatka
Executive Vice President
PennAg Industries Association

In the editorial by Brian Snyder on Oct. 26 he stressed the fact that rhetoric was growing stronger on both sides of the issue concerning Senate Bill 1413. His rhetoric provided a solid argument on one side but missed a significant number of points on the other side of the issue.

It is important to understand some of the points on the other side of the issue, and a little history, both of which are missing from Snyder's arguments.

Senate Bill 1413, as he suggests, is quite simple, so simple in fact that one can read it in far less than five minutes. Not only is the amendment contained in Senate Bill 1413 simple, so is the original Right to Farm Act of 1982.

The Right to Farm Act, which has been on the books for 20 years, protects farmers from harassment and frivolous ordinances and lawsuits. The wording in the original act is not that different from the wording in the amendments contained in Senate Bill 1413. It was the purpose of the Right to Farm Act to protect agriculture from local governments, which, under pressure from local citizens, might adopt frivolous, onerous, and illegal ordinances.

But in spite of the Right to Farm Act, some local governments have done exactly what the Act was intended to prevent. Rather than complying with the Act, local governments have violated it. Therein lies the rub. Should agriculture roll over and play dead because, as Snyder asserts, they might feel they "should not be able to operate in a vacuum" or that "their enemies are their customers"? I think not.

As an aside, I assume that 20 years ago the legislature, in its wisdom, intended that as farming advanced and new technology was developed, farmers had the right to use that new technology and apply it in order to increase productivity and profits. They certainly didn't intend that farming in 2002 should be done the same way as it was in 1950 or in 1982 when the Right to Farm Act was enacted.

Conversely, there is no requirement that farmers modernize and use current technology. The farmer can operate like he did a few decades ago

Now Is The Time

By Leon Ressler

Lancaster County Extension Director

To Evaluate This Year's Pumpkin Crop

Lancaster County horticulture agent Tim Elkner suggests harvest is a good time to evaluate the successes and/or failures of your crop production practices. He recommends you take a few minutes now to look back at your pumpkin crop for this season. How did you do?

Obviously the drought had a large effect on the crop, especially if you did not have any way to irrigate. How did your handles look? What about the amount of rot that you saw in the field and after harvest? How about the stand of the crop in the field — were there many skips? What caused those vines to die? Let's look at some of the factors affecting pumpkin yields and quality.

In order to have the greatest yields from a field, you need to have the field covered with pumpkin vines. If you had a poor stand, hopefully you took some time to determine the cause. Did you have poor germination? Was it from bad (old) seed or was your planter not set properly? Either of these factors needs to be corrected before planting next season.

Did you loose vines after germination? If so, why? Elkner visited and talked with several growers this season that had very high cucumber beetle pressure in their fields. These beetles spread bacterial wilt. Normally bacterial wilt is not much of a problem in pumpkins, but the high beetle pressure seems to have resulted in more diseased and dead vines in the fields this year. In addition, the beetles lay their eggs at the base of the vines and the larvae feed on the pumpkin roots.

While you will rarely see a vine die because of this feeding, it will still be weakening the vine. If you did not have good beetle control this year, again begin planning for next season. Remember: Admire treatments only last a few weeks, and then you will need to switch to foliar sprays to control the beetles that move into the fields later in the season.

Dr. Brent Loy, pumpkin breeder at the University of New Hampshire, has noted that semi-vining types of pumpkins are not as drought-tolerant as the older, more vigorous types. He reports that premature dieback of vines can occur in semi-vining types of pumpkins under conditions of stress, especially if the vines are carrying a heavy fruit load. Increased planting of the newer cultivars that are semi-vining probably has made the pumpkin crop more susceptible to the recent summer droughts. Perhaps you should consider having part of your crop in an older or more traditional vining-type cultivar as a bit of "insurance" against a dry summer.

Most of the growth of face-type pumpkins is completed by 15 to 20 days after pollination and fruit set. This means that the period of flowering and fruit set is the most important time to have adequate moisture and fertility in your pumpkin crop. During this period of rapid fruit growth, even slight amounts of water stress will reduce the final fruit size.

After a pumpkin reaches maximum size (in face-type pumpkins), the handle begins to harden. This process occurs from 20 to 35 days after fruit set. During this period of time the pumpkin flesh is accumulating starch. By 30 days after pollination the fruit may begin to show orange color and by 40 to 45 days after pollination, the pumpkins of many varieties will appear ripe or fully colored.

So what does it mean to have shriveled handles at harvest or shortly after? Poor handles are an indication that the plants were stressed during the period of time when the handles were being developed. Once the fruit is colored, it cannot "go back" and finish hardening the handle.

Another area to evaluate is your disease control. One advantage of a dry season is that there are generally less disease problems. However, if you stopped spraying once your pumpkins were mature but several weeks before harvest, you might have allowed disease to take advantage of the rains in September to infect your fruit.

Editor:

Each month in Pennsylvania 119,000 animals are lost as wildlife is killed by collisions with motor vehicles on Pennsylvania highways and roads. A fresh wildlife kill or several individuals can be found dead or dying each month nearly every mile.

Rabbits appear to be number one in deaths, while the number two species is believed to be all reptiles, cold-blooded creatures including but not limited to snakes, toads, frogs, and worms mostly in spring through fall. Number three most frequent wild animal killed appears to be tied among squirrels, woodchucks, skunk, opossums, songbirds, and migratory birds as the season progresses.

Deer are an unclear number four followed by raccoon, domestic animals, foxes, porcupines,

TRAGEDY AT LAST!

Background Scripture:
Psalms 42:5-11.
Devotional Reading:
Lamentations.

Promised for so long, when tragedy finally comes, it arrives with a thunderclap of shock. And then, at last, the lamentations begin — the lamentations that did not need to be, but came inexorably because hearts and heads were hardened.

After World War II we saw photographs and newsreel footage of the horrific destruction of European cities: Berlin, Dresden, Hamburg, and so many others. Thirteen years later, when I made my first trip to Europe, much of the destruction was still evident.

These are sights I will not ever forget.

Then, there was Hiroshima and Nagasaki. I saw only the photographs and movie footage, but it was enough to remain in my memory as long as I live. A large percentage of the world's population has never seen such destruction and I pray that they never will. But we must never permit these images to vanish from our planetary consciousness, because they speak to us powerfully of the judgments we bring upon ourselves.

"How lonely sits the city that was full of people! How like a widow she has become, she that was great among the nations . . . has become a vassal" (1:1).

An Inside Job!

Examining and pondering the destruction of civilizations past, historian Arnold J. Toynbee has observed that "no great civilization is ever murdered, but dies from internal weaknesses and betrayal; it commits suicide." (quoted by Dwight E. Stevenson).

This is what really happened to Judah. Although Jerusalem was sacked and destroyed by the Chaldeans under Nebuchadnezzar, this carnage was really an "inside job," a hardness of heart against God and his will that invited disaster. It is as if unconsciously this is what Judah had been seeking and now they had achieved tragedy at last!

Surely the people of Jerusalem had not invited this desolation. But the writer of Lamentations tells us, "Jerusalem sinned grievously, therefore she became filthy; all who honored her despise her . . . Her uncleanness was in her skirts; she took no thought of her doom; therefore her fall is terrible" (1:8a,9). I am reminded of the wisdom of Walt Kelly's comic-strip character Pogo: "We have met the enemy, and he is us!"

There is shock and sorrow expressed in Lamentations. There is resentment, too: "Is it nothing to you, all you who pass by? Look and see if there is any sorrow like my sorrow which was brought upon me, which the Lord inflicted on the day of his fierce anger" (1:12). "The Lord has become like an enemy, he has destroyed Israel" (2:5).

Exile No Longer

There is also, however, enlightenment and confession: "The Lord is in the right, for I have rebelled against his word" (1:18) Once the people of Judah can embrace their responsibility for this tragedy, healing can begin to take place.

"For the Lord will not cast off forever, but, though he cause grief, he will have compassion according to the abundance of his steadfast love; for he does not willingly afflict or grieve the sons of men" (3:31-33). For a time they have had to pay grievously for their rebellion, but "this too shall pass."

"The punishment for your iniquity, O daughter of Zion, is accomplished, he will keep you in exile no longer" (4:22).

The Book of Lamentations in not all lamentation. It also acknowledges the goodness of God and the hope that is dependent upon that realization. "The steadfast love of the Lord never ceases, his mercies never come to an end; they are new every morning; great is thy faithfulness" (3:22,23).

Like most of you, I have known times of great sorrow, anguish, and despair. It has always seemed that when I had fallen as far as I could fall, at the bottom of the pit I have been able to realize that I cannot be separated from the steadfast love of God, unless I myself do the separating and keep myself separate.

Having found that my trust in myself was so far from being enough, I have been able to join with the writer of Lamentations and say: "The Lord is my portion,' says my soul, 'therefore I will hope in him."'

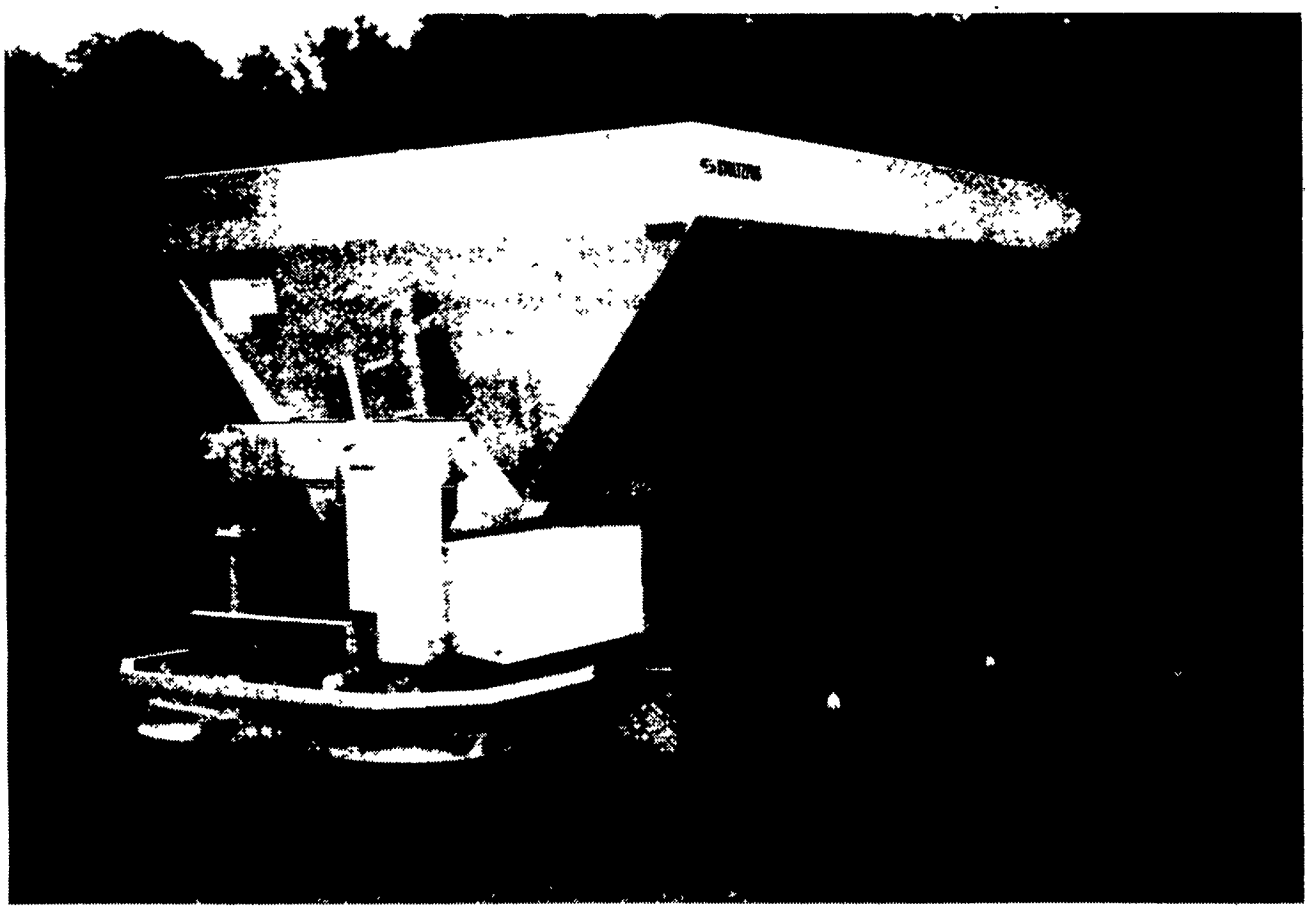
It's Time To Lime!



The Stoltzfus Wet Lime Spreader is likely the most powerful spreader of its kind on the market today. You see, we've been building them since 1945, and farmers are still using Stoltzfus Wet Lime Spreaders they've had for 20, even 30 years. Our special drag chain is 4 times stronger than stainless steel, and handles frozen and heavy stockpiled lime with ease. Plus for spreading compost, composted sludge, poultry litter and certain fertilizers, the WLS is without equal for sheer volume spreading. We call that performance. You'll call it terrific.

We hope you compare a Stoltzfus WLS with other spreaders. It makes us look even better. Price? Sure we may be a little more. But when you end up replacing cheaper units in a few short years, what have you saved? Stoltzfus quality always pays for itself many times over.

Just how tough is a Stoltzfus WLS? Plenty tough. Call today. We'll tell you where to find the dealer nearest you, and send you free literature to inspect.

- Two-ton, five-ton, eight-ton models
- PTO, 540 rpm or 1,000 rpm
- Two-speed conveyor chain
- Leaf spring suspension
- Dual 24" spinners
- Spreads 40' effectively

OCTOBER FEDERAL ORDER PRICES ANNOUNCED

- Class III and IV prices higher.
- Commodity prices improved.
- Rally is not sustainable.

Recent calculations by USDA's Market Administrators look promising. The November Class I mover was up $0.45 per CWT from the month before to $10.60. That implies a November MILC payment of $1.39 per CWT. And announced Class III and IV prices for October are both up. Class III is up $0.80 per CWT to $10.72 and Class IV is up $0.28 per CWT to $10.50.

Does this look like the beginning of a late fall rally?

The butter situation looks promising. Grade AA butter prices in Chicago this week traded at $1.0325 per pound. While only 23 carloads of butter were traded this week, there does appear to be evidence that the market is clearing a lot of butter. This is occurring in anticipation of holiday promotions. USDA reports that this may move a good quantity of butter.

The numbers from USDA indicate that butter prices used in the calculation of October federal order prices actually rose 6.27 cents per pound from the previous month.

Cheese is a different story. The five-week cheese price rally in late September and early October was short-lived. Block cheese prices this week in Chicago averaged $1.0760 per pound, below the support price of $1.1314. It is that rally that has elevated Octobers' Class III price by $0.80 per CWT. Unfortunately, according to the futures markets, Class III prices in November and December are expected to reflect the cash market and will be below $10 per CWT.

Low milk prices won't last forever. The same market that is expecting low November and December Class III prices is also expecting Class III prices to average $10.92 per CWT the first six months of 2003, and $12.40 per CWT the second half of 2003. And those numbers will rise significantly if the milk supply falls below market expectations and if market sales of dairy products improve. Again, low milk prices don't last forever.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

More microbial protein
means better nutrition.
Count on it with Agway
Feed and Nutrition, and Optigen® 1200.
Trying to meet the right nutrition requirements can be a challenge. Agway Feed and Nutrition [illegible] as the #1 supplier of dairy feeds in the northeast, we're ready to lead the industry through the integration of new technology with the latest NRC recommendations for optimal microbial protein production. Today, our nutritionists can formulate diets designed to:
• Improve the efficiency of protein and nitrogen use while striving for optimal productivity
• Reduce feed cost per unit of milk yield
• Realize greater and more efficient milk yields
• Create dry matter space in the diet for other nutrients that will enhance production.
Optigen® 1200 controlled release nitrogen is the unique ration formulation tool that allows our nutritionists to increase nutrient density and optimize microbial protein production. No company has more experience with successful Optigen 1200 feeding programs than Agway Feed and Nutrition. It's all part of our commitment to lead the industry to the highest standards in dairy nutrition, and your business to greater profitability.

GENETICS OF FEET AND LEGS AND IMPORTANCE OF BULL SELECTION

Mary Beth Grove
Dairy/Environmental Agent
Lancaster County

How important is it to select bulls that transmit good (above-average) feet and legs for your herd? How should these bulls be selected?

Common sense tells us that when deciding which A.I. bulls to use for the dairy herd, the traits we select should have a definite economic value. Everyone knows the economic value of milk pounds and butterfat percentage — in most cases, more milk means more money in your pocket. Unfortunately, the relationship between foot and leg traits and production or cow longevity is much more difficult to measure.

Dr. Ben McDaniel at North Carolina State University conducted interesting research to evaluate the importance of feet and legs on production. Much of this work was done at several state-owned dairy herds in the Carolinas. The researchers actually measured the hoof angle and hoof length on several thousand cows to determine if these measurements could be associated with production traits. Table 1 exhibits the finding of this study.

These results showed that as foot angle increased (became steeper) by 5 degrees in first calf heifers, there was an associated 503-pound increase in second lactation milk production. A decrease in 10 mm of toe length in first calf heifers equated to a 1,475-pound increase in second-lactation milk production. Steeper foot angles and shorter claw length were associated with fewer days open, earlier breedings, and a greater survival to five years of age. Deeper heels tended to increase days open, but also increased longevity of that cow in the herd. Cattle with deeper heels did exhibit more sole ulcers.

Longer claws and lower angles were also associated with lower survival rates. It was also suggested that legs that are neither too straight (posty) nor too crooked (sickled) are apparently the best for increasing longevity in cattle.

As you can see from this research, there is an economic value in steeper foot angles in dairy cattle. Unfortunately, this does not mean that they are easily improved by using better genetics.

There is another important factor in making bull breeding decisions — the "heritability" of that trait. What is heritability? In simple terms, it is the portion of the "visible" differences in a trait that are due to genetic factors. The higher the heritability, the greater is the genetic control on the trait, and the more rapidly selection will result in genetic progress.

Table 1. Correlations between measured foot traits and production/longevity characteristics of dairy cows in North Carolina institutional herds.

Trait	Foot Angle	Claw Length	Heel Depth
Milk, pounds	.01	.18	-.12
Fat, pounds	-.40	.24	-.06
Days Open	-.44	.26	.59
Survival to 5 years of age	.21	-.01	.36
Age at culling	.87	-.34	.47

Some traits are highly heritable. For example, stature has a heritability of about .42 or 42 percent. This means genetics accounts for 42 percent of the variation in stature (measured at hip height), and the environment (or the way the animal was raised) accounts for the remaining 58 percent. Unfortunately, foot and leg traits are not nearly as heritable, in part because the animal's environment can easily affect the feet on a cow. In Table 2, you will see the linear score and heritabilities for the foot and leg traits.

This data suggests that, while increased foot angle and proper leg set are very important for cow longevity, much of the improvement to be made on feet and legs on individual cows will be through environmental changes. These environmental changes might include grooved concrete and more stall bedding, allowing cows access to pasture, and an adequate nutritional program.

Unfortunately, with these "low to moderate" heritability values, bull selection to improve feet and legs through genetics will be a long, slow process. This also explains why you may not always be able to see measurable changes from generation to generation in regards to foot confirmation. This does not mean you should ignore foot and leg composite or foot angle PTAs on bulls — just that you may want to make it a secondary trait to select.

Why not choose bulls that meet your production goals first, and then choose from this pool of bulls for those with higher foot angle and more intermediate leg set traits? When attempting to correct a "two-way" trait such as rear legs (side view), select an intermediate (+. 00) bull — this bull will tend to sire daughters with legs of an intermediate set. Using a bull that tends to sire daughters with straight "posty" legs will not correct a "sickled" cow faster.

There are also some indexes that include the sire's genetic merit for foot angle in the overall index. One such index is Net Merit. According to many industry leaders, the top Net Merit bulls transmit the best combination of superior genes for production, longevity, somatic cell score, and type traits for most commercial dairy herds.

For more information on sire selection for improved feet and legs, call Beth Grove at (717) 394-6851 or contact your local extension office.

Farm Show 2003 Exhibitor Spotlight

Tam Systems Anticipates Meeting Farmers, Public At Pa. Farm Show

DILLSBURG (York Co.) — Tam Systems Inc. has been a steady presence at the Pennsylvania Farm Show for about three decades. The company specializes in innovative commercial buildings, grain systems, and feed-processing facilities,

Howard Rife, Tam Systems sales manager, said he has seen the Farm Show's focus over the years shift away from agriculture toward consumer education. According to him, that's not all bad.

"We need to educate those consumers along with the farmers," Rife said.

At the same time, Rife is hopeful the newly expanded Farm Show will attract more farmers than it has in recent years.

"The focus has to go back to the farmer," he said. "I certainly think the addition can only help."

> "The focus has to go back to the farmer. I certainly think the addition can only help."

> Howard Rife
> Tam Systems

Tam has 45 employees and serves customers in Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and the Carolinas. Rife said the Farm Show is an ideal gathering place for ag enthusiasts, not only from this region but also from the rest of the country and the world.

"You see people at the Farm Show from literally everywhere," he said.

Rife expects to be on hand at the company's 20 by 20-foot exhibition area at the Farm Show in January. A Tam dryer/aeration system and partial grain bin will be on display, along with plenty of information about the company's line of building services.

"We're glad to see the Farm Show is expanding," Rife said.

2003 Ag Directory Scheduled

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farming has scheduled the third-annual publication of an agricultural directory for the mid-Atlantic region.

This resources guide includes names, addresses, phone numbers, and websites of agencies, extension, agri-industry personnel, and producer organizations throughout the Mid-Atlantic region.

Directed to producers, the directory will be included in Lancaster Farming's total circulation and be distributed at the upcoming Farm Show.

To submit or update your organization's information, e-mail farming@lancasterfarming.com or leave a message at (717) 721-4426.

The issue is scheduled for Dec. 28.

Farm Hosts New Jersey Angus Association Reorganization Meeting

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

PEAPACK, N.J. Picturesque River Bend Farm, located here with its wood shingle barns and black cattle grazing among the fall colors, was the site recently of the reorganization meeting of the New Jersey Angus Association.

Organizers Bob Mickel, Hunterdon County Extension Agent; Howard Hoffman, Cedar Lane Farm; Dr. John Higgins, Acorn Embryo; and Corne Vogelaar, River Bend Farm, have visions of the association becoming revitalized after several years of inactivity.

Through talking with fellow breeders and extension personnel, the organizers believe there is enough interest to give it a try. The organizers contacted those on the last known active membership list and breeders with the American Angus Association from neighboring states, several of which exhibit their animals at the New Jersey State Angus Show conducted each August at the Sussex County Farm Show.

River Bend Farm is home to herd manager Corne Vogelaar; wife Dawn; and children Case, 5; Jay, 4; Melissa, 2; and Joshua, 6 months. The farm consists of 240 owned and rented acres and has a herd that includes 60 cows. The acreage is all hay or pastureland with all registered Angus cattle.

The herd includes four bulls used for cleanup breeding; however, 85 percent of the females are bred AI or used for embryo transfer. The operation also has one full-time employee, Mike Brown.

Vogelaar, of Dutch ancestry, was born in Holland. His father was a minister. Through his career travels, the family moved from Holland to Canada and eventually to New Jersey.

With a lifelong interest in agriculture, Vogelaar earned a degree in animal science from Cook College, part of Rutgers University.

He has worked on dairy farms, became involved with cooperative extension, and then learned about the herd manager position at River Bend Farm. He has been at River Bend Farm for the past six and a half years.

The original herd at River Bend Farm was started 40 years ago by the Turnbull family. The main focus of the farm and operation today is to have all registered animals and try to market purebred animals through the sale of bulls and females as seedstock.

Vogelaar said the association was idle for about the past five years. During the mid to late 1980s, quite a few of the larger Angus breeders of the state that had been the backbone of the group sold off their herds.

The association kept active for a few years after that but eventually interest fell, and the association has been in limbo ever since.

During the meeting portion, Vogelaar welcomed everyone, stressing that the point of the event was to get the association back up and going again.

The organizers indicated they need and welcome all the input they can get, and were conducting this barn tour and gathering in an attempt to reactivate, decide where they wanted to go with the association, what needed to be done to reorganize, and what general direction the group wanted to take.

Jamie Hower, Bethlehem, Pennsylvania Angus Queen and an American Angus Association junior board director, checks pedigrees of young heifers at River Bend Farm.

Case Vogelaar, 5, son of Corne and Dawn Vogelaar, disinfects his boots as a biosecurity measure during the pasture walk at River Bend Farm.

The group discussed several upcoming events where the association could participate or have a display to get the word out that the association has reformed and is looking for more members. The group believes there are many breeders out there that may not be aware of the association.

Present were visitors and interested breeders from New Jersey and Pennsylvania and all expressed an interest in keeping the association active. The group wanted to concentrate on supporting the youth and junior members. Assisting them is Jamie Hower, Bethlehem, Pa. Angus Queen and an American Angus Association junior board director.

John Tighe volunteered to be the delegate representing the New Jersey Angus Association at the New Jersey State Ag Convention in Atlantic City in January 2003 with Corn Vogelaar serving as the alternate delegate.

Guest speaker Dr. Anne Pierok, senior veterinarian at the New Jersey Department of Ag, Division of Animal Health, spoke to the group. Pierok noted that it is important for breeders to come together strong not only to have strength as a group but to have a voice. Involvement in a group such as the New Jersey Angus Association is an excellent way to become better informed regarding animal health issues, she noted.

Pierok spoke about NJCHAP — the New Jersey Cattle Health Assurance Program, tailored after the program in New York State to test for and prevent Johne's disease. The state offers free herd testing and development of herd plans.

Pierok is editor of Cattle Health News, a publication of the New Jersey Department of Agriculture, Division of Animal Health. To be added to the mailing list for Cattle Health News or to receive a copy of the Johne's

EMERGENCY ACTION PLAN: DOES YOUR FARM HAVE ONE?

A farm with even the most detailed accident prevention program still faces the risk of an accident, so why not develop a plan to become better prepared? An emergency action plan is a written, detailed document that serves as a basic, yet thorough plan on what to do during an accident or emergency on your farm. Although an emergency action plan is not required for your farm, it is something to definitely consider implementing.

You might ask, "Why should I take the time to complete an emergency action plan?" Have you ever considered what you would do in the case of a barn fire, manure spill or containment leak, an accident on your farm involving an employee or yourself, or even a mass animal mortality?

If you are away from the farm when an accident occurs, does your family or employees know how to properly respond?

To help ease anxiety on dealing with these potential issues, a plan to address the key components will help provide the framework for what to do during an unforeseen emergency. Completing a plan demonstrates your commitment to minimizing risks to employees and livestock, the economic loss to the farm, and the impact to the environment.

There are four basic components to consider in your emergency action plan. First, you will need to assess your farm and identify potential risk factors. Consider human health, animal welfare, the environment, buildings, manure containment, manure transportation equipment, machinery, and any other areas with potential risk. For each potential risk factor identified, outline steps to take to resolve the emergency.

An example of a potential risk could be: Your manure storage structure has a manure release. Items to consider in your plan of action would be: Do you have equipment or access to neighbors' equipment to contain a release? Is there access to all surrounding land to contain a release? Do you have the contact information of regulators that you're required to call? Is there a spokesperson to deal with the media/neighbors/regulators?

A second step would be to develop a detailed map of your farm. This map could be beneficial to new employees and to the local fire company or other emergency response organization to help identify key areas on the farm. Items to include on your site map would be a facility address and building locations on the farm, electrical service boxes, wellheads and water main connections and shut-off valves, manure storage structures and valves or pumps, nearby streams and water drainage areas, property boundaries, first aid kit(s), and fire extinguisher(s). In addition to main farm map, it would be suggested to include a field map of land application areas.

Constructing a list of emergency contact names and numbers to call and posting the listing by all phones is a third step to include in your plan. Contacts might include 911, local physician, Hazmat, fire department, police, power company, mortality disposal, and the proper environmental regulatory agency. It's important to include written directions to your farm, the farm name and address, and the 911 location.

A final basic component of your plan might include a clean-up plan. In the case of a manure release, this would include proper manure removal, manure application areas with proper rates/acre, and possibly filing a report with your local environmental regulatory agency. In the case of an animal mortality incident, you would want to include the proper method of disposal and business to contact pickup.

Having an emergency action plan is only worthwhile when your employees know how to implement it. It is essential to properly review and educate all employees of the farm about the plan and its location. It is also important to update the plan as facilities or operations change on the farm. And, lastly, you might consider providing a copy of your plan and offering a tour of your farm to local emergency response personnel to better educate them of your operation.

Now Is The Time

By Leon Ressler

Dr. Alan MacNab, vegetable disease specialist at Penn State, noted that black rot could infect fruit but take up to four weeks to show any symptoms. So the fruit that you sell may look fine, but when your buyer puts it on his market stand it may "suddenly" start to show disease symptoms.

There are two options you have in protecting your fruit from disease once it is mature. First, maintain a fungicide program until harvest. You are no longer protecting the leaves from diseases but the fruit still needs protection. Second, harvest the fruit and store it in a cool, dry location until you sell it. This might mean handling the fruit an extra time, but if field conditions favor disease development, it could be worth the extra labor cost.

Another proven method to help reduce diseases in pumpkin fruit is to use a no-till production system. Having a plant residue over the soil will protect the fruit from rain-splashed fungal spores as well as reducing infection by fusarium since the fruit is not in contact with the soil. This can increase yields by lowering the number of fruit lost to rot diseases. In addition, your fruit will be cleaner at harvest and weed control can be easier.

Make some notes now on observations of this season's pumpkin crop so that you can make any necessary changes next season to potentially improve yields and fruit quality. Making a few changes in your production practices has the potential to result in higher income from your pumpkin crop. In addition, a high quality pumpkin will result in satisfied buyers and more return business in the future.

The Beef Quality Assurance Program
Fall Training

The Pennsylvania Beef Quality Assurance Program has scheduled both classroom and chute-side training sessions for the fall season. These sessions will train, certify, and recognize beef producers who adopt and maintain BQA guidelines and best management practices.

Locally, classroom training will be held beginning at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 14 at the Blue Ball Elementary School. A chute-side training will be conducted at the Leesport Livestock Auction on Thursday, Nov. 21, beginning at 6 p.m. These back-to-back trainings will enable producers to gain certification status in an efficient manner.

Successful participants receive a certificate of completion, an attractive "Certified Producer" farm sign, and have access to program ear tags or back tags. For more information or alternative dates, contact BQA coordinator Scott Wright at (717) 939-7000. For directions to the Blue Ball Elementary School, call Jeff Stoltzfus, (717) 354-1522.

Farmers To Meet Nov. 12

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.) — Several farm organizations, including The Progressive Agriculture Organization (ProAg), Pennsylvania Farmers Union (PFU), the Northern Tier Milk Coop, and the Family Farm Defenders, will sponsor a general meeting for all farmers and business people on Tuesday, Nov. 12. The meeting will be at the Bradley Hall Columbia Crossroads beginning at 1 p.m.

Speaking for the groups, Arden Tewksbury, manager of ProAg, stated that many dairy farmers are extremely discouraged regarding the continued low agriculture commodity prices. PFU and ProAg believe the accelerated amounts of agriculture imports coming into the U.S. play a major roll in the low commodity prices.

Tewksbury said the main topics to be discussed at the meeting will be the continued low milk prices paid to dairy farmers, the imports of agriculture products including milk protein concentrate, and the attempts being made to qualify Tioga County animal growers to be eligible for the Livestock Compensation Program.

Larry Breech, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union, strongly agrees with ProAg that Tioga County should be declared a primary county for disaster relief. Tewksbury also said 16 U.S. senators, including Sen. Specter, Sen. Schumer, and Sen. Clinton, have submitted a letter to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ann Veneman urging the secretary to reopen the drought declaration for several counties.

According to Tewksbury, dairy farmers who do not have a soil conservation plan for their farms can still apply for the plan, have the plan developed and approved, and the dairy farmers could receive their dairy market loss funds.

Breech said it's time for our organizations to set aside any differences we have and focus on the major items we agree on to benefit all farmers.

BETTER BEATS BIGGER.

How do you shatter the world plowing record set by a 425 hp track tractor? You don't have to get bigger. You don't have to get tracks. You just have to get better. That's what happened when the Massey Ferguson 8280 fixed frame wheeled tractor set a new world record. The MF 8280 fine tuned to deliver 387 hp, outdid the predecessor by nearly 100 acres, plowing 621 acres in 24 hours.

What makes the MF 8280 better? Take a world class engine, a transmission that won't quit and add a powerful hydraulic system. Throw in a high tech control system that automatically monitors and adjusts the flow of power to the wheels for less slip and you've got better...more than 24 acres an hour better.

So don't just get a bigger tractor next time you have a big job to do. Get a better tractor. Get a Massey Ferguson 8280 and shatter some records yourself.

or he can decide if he wants to raise fruits or vegetables, raise organic commodities, or start a new or expand an existing, animal/poultry operation in order to increase profits, stay in business, and pass the farm on to the next generation. That is a choice that should be left to the farmer, not to local government.

Should local government be allowed to break the law just because "there is a lot of heat in the kitchen" when local citizens descend on the township meeting and demand that they do something to stop the installation of a finishing floor for swine or stop someone who has plans to expand a dairy operation in the township?

You and I are expected to obey the laws of the land, and there are plenty of them. Agriculture and agribusiness are very heavily regulated too. There are requirements for nutrient management plans, conservation plans, erosion and sediment control plans, water quality permits, and on and on. It has been said that there are two million laws on the books to enforce the Ten Commandments. And if agriculture has to obey all of the laws, why should local government be exempt?

What Senate Bill 1413 does is restate the original purpose of the Right to Farm Act and then goes one step further. It states that if the local government ignores the statute and adopts a frivolous or onerous ordinance and is then taken to court by the agricultural community, and the agricultural community prevails, the court may award legal costs to the agricultural community.

But you know the legislation even goes further and provides that if the township prevails in court, that the court may award costs to the township. And in that case the agricultural community would pay the local governments costs. Senate Bill 1413 cuts both ways.

What is unfair about that? First of all, a local government is only vulnerable if it ignores the Right to Farm Act and someone is so aggrieved that they take them to court. There are a number of current instances where it is felt that local governments have adopted illegal ordinances, but the agricultural community can not afford to take them to court. I suspect that will continue to be the case.

Also, in what other situation would you be allowed to break a law on a regular basis and be left unchallenged? Or if you break the law and are taken to court, but the court determines that you are innocent and orders the police department to pay your legal and court costs?

Let me assure your readers that the solution offered in Senate Bill 1413 to the current dilemma facing agriculture is not an unfair one to local governments or their tax-paying citizens. To the contrary, it may be the best option available to them.

Agriculture is not the only industry that is having difficulty with the local governments. And if all of those industries — which have problems with local government — unite, the solutions, which are developed by such a coalition, could be unfair to local governments rather than the reasonable and fair approach offered in Senate Bill 1413.

DairyCOP$ Workshop Nov. 18

ADAMSTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Dairy producers can participate in a hands-on workshop to examine how to produce 100 pounds of milk.

Penn State Dairy Alliance and Nutrient Solutions in Agriculture have scheduled a DairyCOP$ workshop Monday, Nov. 18, from 1 a.m. to 5 p.m., in conjunction with the upcoming Farming with Technology Conference at Weaver's Banquet Hall in Adamstown.

DairyCOP$ (Dairy Cost of Production System) is a computer spreadsheet developed by Brad Hilty, information management specialist with Penn State Dairy Alliance program. The spreadsheet compiles financial and production data from a dairy farm and calculates the farm's accrual cost of producing 100 pounds of milk.

A grant from the Northeast Center for Risk Management Education will subsidize 50 percent of the cost, so producers will pay only $35. There is a $12 charge for additional people from the same farm. Producers interested in participating in this program should call the Dairy Alliance Office at (888) 373-PADA. For additional information, call the Dairy Alliance Office or e-mail bhilty@psu.edu.

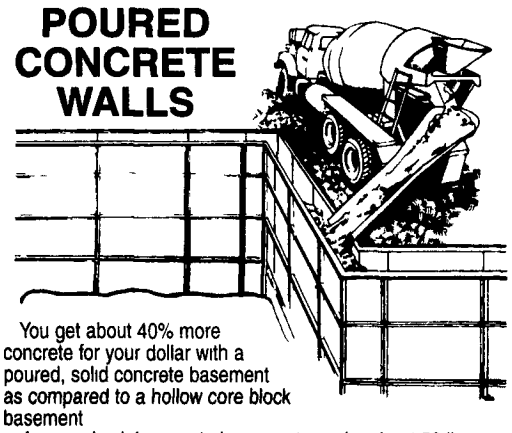
START WITH THE BEST!
POURED CONCRETE WALLS



You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs more per cubic foot! Far denser What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic .. there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks
- Concrete Pit Tops

Northampton County 4-H Roundup Conducted

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

MOORESTOWN (Northampton Co.) — The beautiful Northampton County 4-H Center was the site of the Northampton County 4-H roundup recently. The livestock classes were judged by Bob Mikesell, Penn State Senior Extension Associate involved with Curriculum Development at Penn State.

Starting the day Mikesell selected Nicole Kondziela, Bath, as his champion fitter of the market swine show from the senior division. Staying with the seniors he then tapped Travis Hahn as his reserve champion fitter.

The champion showman title went to senior Joel Geiger, Danielsville, with Steven Hunsicker receiving the reserve champion showman ribbon.

Repeating the success she had at the Planfield Farmer's Fair earlier this summer, first-year member Kelly Hower again saw her Hampshire rise to the top as Mikesell selected her 263-pound entry as the grand champion market swine of the event.

Kondziela then had her entry selected as the reserve grand champion. Kondziela also placed first in the pairs competition of the show.

Jennifer Hower of Bethlehem then gathered the blue as she was named the champion fitter and showman of the beef show and later had her March 2001 Angus heifer, Just Enuff Circle A Sabrina named the champion Angus heifer as well as the supreme heifer of the show. In the market steer show Hower lead her 1,345-pound winner of the heavyweight class to the grand champion market steer spot.

Grand champion Simmental heifer honors went to the entry of Jesse Poliskiewicz, Bangor, named Strawberry. The reserve grand champion market steer title also went to Poliskiewicz for his 1,235-pound entry from the medium weight class.

Moving on to the market goat competition, Mikesell selected junior exhibitor Josh Bauman as his champion fitter and Diana Holder, Slatington, as his champion showman. The reserve fitter and reserve showman titles went to Amber Buttner.

For his grand and reserve champion market goats Mikesell selected the two entries of Sarah Blackadar, Riegelsville, from the heavyweight class weighing 88 and 87 pounds respectively.

Sarah Blackadar continued to gather the honors as she was named the champion showman of the market lamb show and had her entry named the reserve grand champion market lamb.

Brother Christopher Blackadar was awarded the champion fitter of the market lamb competition and saw his entry receive the grand champion market lamb title as well as placing first in the market lamb pairs division.

Reserve fitter honors of the market lamb show went to James Ford with the reserve showman title going to Amber Buttner.

Supreme champion heifer of the Northampton County 4-H Roundup was exhibited by Jennifer Hower, Bethlehem. This bred and owned March 2001 entry was first named the champion Angus heifer for Hower.

Herd Manager

Kinsley Construction Company, for 15 years.

South Branch Farms began in the late '60s, when Kinsley first began purchasing land in the Seven Valleys area. The farm includes 1,200 owned and 200 rented acres. Livingston is joined by full-time herdsman Mike Welgosh, herdsman.

The majority of the acreage is in grass. "Traditionally we have grown our own grain crops, but his year we rented out the grain ground to deal exclusively with grass," said Livingston.

With the small amount of grain necessary to feed the cattle, Livingston figures it may be more cost effective to purchase, rather than to grow their own grain.

The farm is in the process of trimming back the herd to 200 brood cows to extend the grazing season a little more into winter, according to Livingston.

The Breeding Program

"We very much have a balanced breeding program," he said. "I would prefer that the cattle are average or slightly above average in every trait versus something that might be at the top of the herd in one or two traits but has other areas they might be weak in.

"The first hurdle they have to jump is having no health problems," he said. The cattle must be "functional and sound in their makeup, and be easy keeping cattle."

Livingston's words to live by in breeding season are that "you have whatever problems you put up with.

"If you're willing to keep open cows around, you're going to have infertility; if you keep sour dispositions around, you'll end up with cows with an attitude; if you start to pull calves, you're going to have calving problems," he said.

"If you have zero tolerance for these things, you'll find that it doesn't take too many generations before these problems virtually disappear. If a bad animal crops up, it will be one or two head versus a widespread problem."

Livingston estimates that he pulled six calves in the last year, with a calf crop from 200 cows. Most of the cows are 3-5 years old.

Extensive record-keeping is the cornerstone for making breeding and culling decisions at the farm. "Most of the cattle here probably have 30-40 different traits that we have them scored for in their lifetime," he said.

Record-keeping includes a calving score (one is unassisted, five is an abnormal presentation), and notes on a cow's mothering ability. Weaning weights are followed by yearling weights, at which time the calves are ultrasounded for carcass traits such as intramuscular fat and ribeye area. Records are used by the Angus Association to calculated Expected Progeny Differences (EPDs).

The fall breeding season is kept to a tight 45 days because "the window where we have really good dependable weather is smaller in the fall. We don't start until it really cools off, and we're done by the first of

Grafting Yields A Spectrum Of Varieties For Orchard Growers

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU

AKRON (Lancaster Co.) — Variety is the spice of Eric Habegger's life.

"I probably have 140 varieties of apples I have; 10 varieties on one tree, made possible by grafting. I wanted to taste a lot of different apples."
—Eric Habegger, Master Orchardist

Eric Habegger, Akron, grows a large variety of fruit trees on his one acre orchard. In the past few years he has introduced the "Espalier" method of pruning and training trees, which trains the trees flat against a wall or framework. These trees still produce abundant amounts of fruit but are easier to care for. Photo by Michelle Kunjappu

Ag Department Likely To Change Under Rendell

nia have yet to be defined.

The Democrat and former mayor of Philadelphia won Tuesday's election by about 275,000 votes — 1,699,832 compared to the 1,424,932 that went to state Attorney General Mike Fisher.

In many of the state's more conservative and rural areas, though, Republican Fisher won by a hefty margin. In Lancaster County, for example, he outpolled Rendell by more than 2 to 1. Similar results were posted in most Pennsylvania counties where agriculture plays a major part.

Rendell will be faced with a budget deficit, as well as a Republican majority in Pennsylvania's legislature. The House gained four Republican seats to tally a 109-94 majority. Senate Republicans continue to outnumber Democrats by the same margin they had prior to the election — 29 to 21.

In September, Rendell outlined his plans at an agricultural issues dialogue conducted at Landis Valley Museum.

His promises for agriculture include protecting farmers from local nuisance ordinances, maintaining PDAs focus on international trade and expanding local markets, opening the Commonwealth's Machinery Equipment and Loan Fund to farmers, boosting funds for conservation easements, uncoupling property taxes from school funding, and aiming to reduce property taxes by 30 percent.

Rendell also vowed to make state government "an exclusive market for Pennsylvania commodities by issuing an executive order requiring commonwealth agencies and institutions to buy homegrown produce first."

Rendell assistant Tom Hickey said Thursday that announcements regarding ag department reorganization are "forthcoming."

"There's a plethora of talent in the ag community across the state," he said. "Ed Rendell will be soliciting that."

Lou Moore, Penn State ag economist, said changes at the PDA will be inevitable under Rendell, but he expects the new governor will continue to support ag and agribusinesses.

"Mr. Rendell understands the importance of agriculture and of the agribusiness community to the state," Moore said. "It is expected that he will continue to support agriculture."

Cornell's Small Farms Program Funds Farm Transfer Workshops

ITHACA, N. Y. — To aid farm families think through the many issues involved in transfer of farm business, the New York FarmLink Program and Cornell Cooperative Extension educators have organized a series of workshops around the state for farmers, family members and employees.

Over the past two years, The Cornell Small Farms Program has made a number of small grants to Cornell Cooperative Extension educators to help them develop programs that specifically target local small farm businesses and the families who live and work on these farms. The workshops are an outgrowth of the program.

Workshop topics include planning and costs of retirement, selling the farm vs. transfer, assessing farm viability, strategies for transfer, creating the transfer team, and maintaining healthy relationships through the process.

Workshops were scheduled the first week in November at Saratoga Springs, Little Falls and Deposit. Following are the dates and locations of workshops in other areas:

- Nov. 13: Governour
- Nov. 14: Dayton
- Nov. 15: Hornell
- Nov. 22: Ithaca
- Dec. 4: Oneida County
- Dec. 5: Cooperstown (Part 1)
- Dec. 11: Oneida County
- Dec. 12: Johnstown (Part 1)
- Jan. 7, 2003: Norwich
- Jan. 21: Cooperstown (Part 2)
- Feb. 4: Johnstown (Part 2).

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2769	1676
LAST WEEK	2809	1856
LAST YEAR	2775	1605

Compared to last week, slaughter steers sold fully 1.00-2.00 higher, with instances of 3.00 higher on the low Choice stock late in the week. Buyers kicked off the week willing to give a little more to procure their needs. However, late in the week bids were greatly increased as the Western direct market is lined up to put another buck or two on their fats this week. A few early sales have 35-60 percent Choice steers trading from 66.00-68.00, which is about steady with last week; although with the December live cattle contract currently above 73.00, and February above 76.00, most analysts expect finished steer prices to continue their uptrend. However, it is difficult to compare the Eastern market to the Western market as the larger feed yards of the West feed their stock a lot faster to fill the needs of the large packing houses that sit in their backyards. Whereas, the farmer-feeder of the East rolls the feed to their steers hard, but holds onto their stock until their steers have fat in places not characteristic of their Western counterparts. With that said, most producers in the East are accustomed to holding a 2.00-3 00 premium to the Western market on their high Choice and Prime steers, and one could easily say we are currently in a sellers market. Slaughter Holsteins sold firm to 1.00 higher on attractive runs. The Holsteins presented on this weeks' market were lighter than noted over the past few weeks; with buyers much more willing to pay up to 60 00 for a 1300-1500 lb steer than a 1600-1700 lb steer. Slaughter heifers began the week fairly scarce, although on an increase in receipts late in the week heifers sold 1.00-2.00 higher. The heifer runs late in the week included some very fancy stock, with buyers willing to run heifers beyond the 70 00 mark due to the improved quality. Lean slaughter cows sold mostly steady to firm for the week. Breaking and Boning cows sold sharply lower to kick off the week, making up some of the losses late in the week as they trended up to 2.00 higher. Buyer attendance continues to fluctuate throughout the week; with quality also a deciding factor as no matter how many buyers there are on hand, none of them are interested in paying market value for full or overly weak cows This week's supply included 29 percent steers, 7 percent heifers, 43 percent cows, 7 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

CALVES: Compared to last week, veal calves sold steady to 5 00 lower. Veal runs continue to be fairly good, with buyer interest continuing along the same lines for several weeks. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold very mixed this week. On a good test Tuesday, bulls sold sharply higher in very active bidding and buyer interest However, late in the week heavier bulls sold with a lower undertone, as lighter bulls sold with a higher undertone. Wet weather and rain showers have calves in rough conditions at times, although calves have yet to come through the ring looking very sick. Holstein heifers sold with a lower undertone this week, as prices failed to surpass the 500.00 mark. The supply remains fairly good, although buyer interest is very sporadic

Passing On The Farm Workshop Slated For Biglerville

BIGLERVILLE (Adams Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Link will conduct a "Passing on the Farm" workshop from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 13, here at the Penn State Fruit Research and Extension Center.

Transferring a farm business from one generation to the next carries emotional, financial, and legal implications. Both family relationships and the business can suffer from failure to plan.

Farmers seeking ideas for successfully passing their farm to family, or those interested in locating interested, unrelated farmers to take over an operation, should attend. Beginning farmers are also urged to participate to glean ideas for building their businesses.

Contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077 by Nov. 12 to register for this free workshop. Lunch will be on your own.

Public Hearings Set For Cumberland Farmers

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Cumberland County's farmers will have a chance to air their concerns about agriculture at three public hearings to be conducted across the county during November.

The "Let's Talk" meetings, sponsored by a new organization, The Future of Cumberland County Agriculture Committee (FOCCA), will begin at 7:30 p.m. on the following dates:

- Nov. 11 at The New Hope Center, (The Old Hopewell-Newburg Elementary School) 203 N. High St., Newburg.
- Nov. 13 at the Penn Township firehall, Huntsdale.
- Nov. 18 at the Cumberland County extension building, 1100 Claremont Road, Carlisle.

FOCCA, originally started by the Penn State Cooperative Extension Board in Cumberland County, is a new alliance of citizens and representatives from various organizations who are concerned about the present and future conditions of agriculture in the county.

Dairy Reps Testify For Continuing Premiums

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) heard testimony from a number of industry representatives Wednesday, with a majority testifying in favor of maintaining a $1.65 per hundredweight over-order premium for the first six months of 2003, according to PMMB communications specialist Tracey Jackson.

The over-order premium is the price paid above the federal order price for fluid milk produced, processed, and sold in Pennsylvania.

Testimony in favor of maintaining the $1.65 premium came from the Pennsylvania State Grange, the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB), Dairylea Cooperative, and the Northeast Milk Marketing Agency (NEMMA). NEMMA represents a number of milk cooperatives, including Dairylea, Land O' Lakes, Maryland & Virginia, and Dairy Farmers of America Northeast.

Representatives of Dean Dairies and Tuscan/Lehigh Dairies asked that the premium be set no higher than $1.20 per hundredweight.

Arthur Zug, a dairy farmer from Juniata County, testified on behalf of the Grange. He cited continuing tight milk markets and drought conditions as reasons for maintaining the premium at $1.65.

"Economists continue to tell us the market for milk remains tight in Pennsylvania," he said. "According to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS), milk production was down 0.8 percent from last year's September production."

Zug pointed out that the number of milk cows in the state in September had decreased by 9,000 since September 2001. That trend is not likely to change over the next six months, he said.

"The current over-order premium has not flooded our dairy market with milk, and Pennsylvania producers have not had difficulty selling our product," Zug said.

He also spoke about the drought adding to the current crisis for dairy farmers.

"Our farm has had a 50 percent yield loss the past two years, which has compounded our financial problems," he said. "Federal programs have helped, but are not the longterm answer. Dairymen would like a fair price for their product, instead of programs to support price levels.

Joel Rotz of the PFB based his recommendation on projected milk prices and costs of production. He noted that current Class III and Class IV milk future prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange point to an average blend price of $13.61 per hundredweight during the first six months of 2003. Meanwhile, PASS reports indicate costs of production for the year ending this September averaged $13.49 per hundredweight, but did not account for recent feed price increases caused by this year's drought.

Taking into account costs for management, interest on equity, and a reasonable profit, Rotz testified that the average dairyman would experience a shortfall of $2.69 per hundredweight of milk produced in coming months.

Jackson of the PMMB said the three-member board will make a decision Dec. 4 to maintain or change the premium.

(Information supplied by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and the Pennsylvania State Grange was included in this report.)

Farmers Finalize Resolutions For State Meeting

protections for farmers' water rights are also among some 130 policy questions that will be decided by the organization's 171 voting delegates from 54 county farm bureaus.

"Our work this week was to consolidate the recommendations of farm families across the commonwealth into resolutions that will be debated and decided at our annual meeting," said Carl Shaffer, a vegetable and grain grower from Columbia County, who serves as vice president of PFB and chairman of its State Policy Development Committee. "The outcome from the annual meeting will become Farm Bureau's road map for the year ahead so far as our outreach to lawmakers and the general public."

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau represents about 30,000 farm families and is affiliated with the nation's largest general farm organization, the 5.1-million member American Farm Bureau Federation.

King for full-time help.

Steven's father, Harold, also comes by to check out the farm's operation. The women hold off-farm jobs, not only for extra income but also to get health insurance for their families.

A total of 500 owned acres and 1,300 rented acres makes up the farm, which lies in the Manchester and Mount Wolf areas.

The Gross family sends out about three loads of cattle a month.

The home farm area has been in the family for eight generations. Corn, soybeans, wheat, hay, barley, and oats are the main crops that the family raises. In addition, they have approximately 700 head of steers on feed and 100 beef commercial crossbred brood cows, besides a few head of hogs.

Close Neighbors

The 2002 winners of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association Cattle Feeder of the Year award, the family has learned how deal with residential and industrial neighbors.

"The pasture backs right into the town," said Gross. Cows step over the township into the borough with regularity, as 40 acres of pasture are located in the borough boundaries.

Additionally, in 1992 the family became neighbors to the large Starbucks facility. The center — once an area farmed by the Grosses — borders their field, since the industrial park that houses the Starbucks Coffee center joins the farm's boundary.

In addition, developers next to other farms are building more apartments.

"The value of the land around here is high because of industry and development," said Gross. Close proximity to a major interstate also drives up land prices, he said.

Even rented ground has become precious. A developing golf course now stands on fields the Grosses have farmed since 1967. Although they are holding steady with finding other of ground to farm, "now we have to travel, too," he said.

Rather than rail against the growth surrounding their land, however, the Gross family has chosen to turn pressure into profit.

A wood products manufacturing facility housed at the industrial park has yielded sawdust that they have used for bedding for several years now.

Although results were not good enough to continue the experiment, the Gross family also tried to use the coffee bean shells from the nearby facility. The shells were tested and came back as 16 percent protein, so they mixed them with the feed. However it was difficult to balance the ration effectively.

Also, the Grosses have farmed and are farming, areas slotted for development. One day they came upon one of their rented cornfields, earmarked for development, to find that building had started and corn was in the process of being mowed down.

"We hurried and got the equipment and chopped it," said Daniel. "Sometimes you just have to work around them."

On other fields, "we gambled and put barley in," although houses could be standing on the field by May. The Grosses pay rent only on the ground where they harvest a crop.

Although they have been willing to adjust, they are realistic about the future of farming in their area. "Someday it might not be economical to (farm)," said Daniel. However he believes that they are moving in the right direction as they attempt to expand territory to farm.

Carbon 4-H Livestock Sale Posts Results

DEANNA CUNFER

PALMERTON (Carbon Co.) — The 2002 Annual 4-H Livestock Sale was conducted during the Carbon County Fair recently.

The county that has seen tremendous growth in the membership of the Carbon County 4-H Livestock Club saw 109 animals parade through the sale ring as auctioneer, Tim Houser, of Houser Auctioneers Inc., New Ringgold, accepted bids for the project animals of the 33 members.

A buyer's luncheon was provided to all registered buyers with the food donated by Walck's Restaurant, Parryville.

Starting the sale was the donation of a custom designed handmade quilt in honor of the 100th anniversary of the 4-H program. The Miller family of Fairyland Farm, Lehighton, paid for the materials and hand quilting with proceeds to be donated to the Carbon County 4-H Development Fund. The successful bid for the quilt went to Scott and Tim Seltzer, Seltzer's Nursery, at a figure of $460. The Seltzers were both members of the 4-H Livestock Club of Carbon County and now have children of their own starting their 4-H careers.

In an effort to raise money for the Bunny Busters Rabbit Club to host an ARBA (American Rabbit Breeders' Association) rabbit show in the county, former member Travis Hawk donated two pens of rabbits for sale. Successful bidders for the two pens were: Scott and Dawn George of Hollyhock Farms, Palmerton, at $95 and Miller's Country Store, Lehighton, for $80.

Starting the sale of champions was the grand champion market steer of Justin Cunfer, 18. Houser Auctioneers Inc., New Ringgold, purchased the 1,344-pound Angus for the high bid of $1,750.

The 236-pound grand champion market hog of Luke Graver, 10, was purchased by Hometown Farmers' Market owned by the Robert Dunn family for $500. Shanna Simmons, 18, then sold her 65-pound grand champion market goat to Mike Fegley, Fegley Fast Fill Mobil for $410.

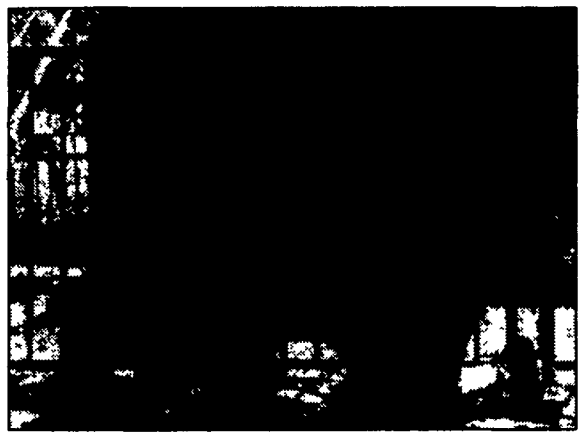
The successful bidder of Nicholas Simmons' 576-pound champion dairy beef was Chas. S. Snyder Inc., Tamaqua, while Herman B. Snyder Plumbing, Lehighton, was the high bidder of the 117-pound champion market lamb of Ashley Barry.

Following is a list of the successful bidders of the reserve champion animals with the exhibitor name and amount of bid: reserve champion market steer of Josh Kemmerer sold to Village Center Mall, the Robert Dunn family, for $1,300; reserve champion market hog of Christiana Graver sold to Palmerton Garage Doors, Ned Biege, for $360; reserve champion market goat of Andrew Miller sold to Chas. S. Snyder Inc. for $150; reserve champion dairy beef of Christiana Graver sold to Chas. S. Snyder Inc. for $600; and the reserve champion market lamb of Luke Graver sold to Anthony Landscapes Inc., Buckingham, for $300.

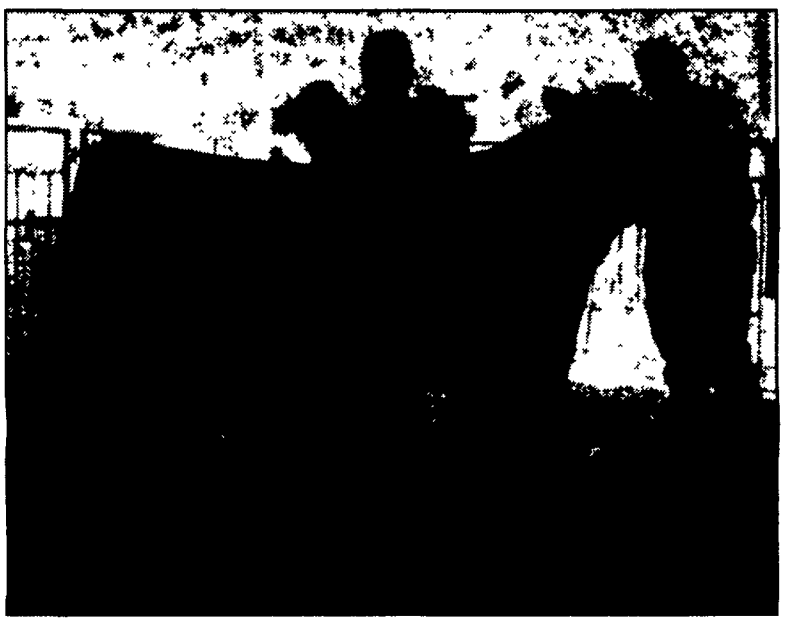
The remainder of the sale (excluding the champion and reserve animals) saw the average prices for market steers at $1,200; dairy beef at $540; market hogs at $256; market lambs at $194; and market goats at $143.

The buy back program for the sale that enabled individuals and businesses that wish to support the 4-H members but do not want to keep the animal was provided by Leesport Farmers' Market, Leesport.

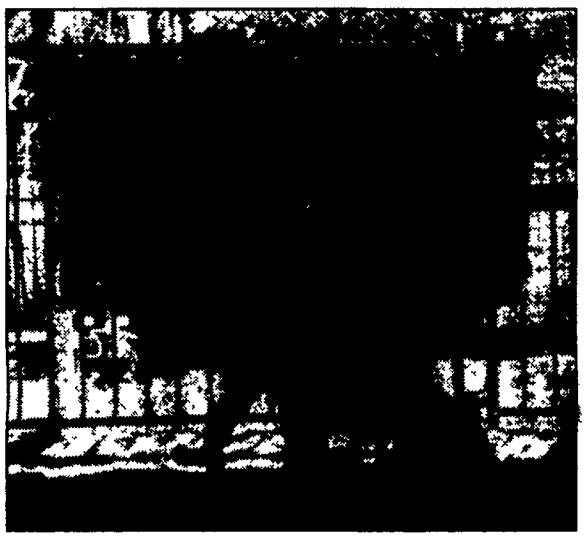
Grand champion dairy beef of the Carbon County Fair exhibited by Nicholas Simmons was purchased by Chas. S. Snyder Inc. of Tamaqua for $1,000.



Grand champion market hog of the Carbon County Fair exhibited by Luke Graver was purchased by the Hometown Farmers' Market for the high bid of $500.



Grand champion market steer of the Carbon County Fair exhibited by Justin Cunfer was purchased by Houser Auctioneers, New Ringgold for the high bid of $1,750.



Grand champion market goat of the Carbon County Fair exhibited by Shanna Simmons was purchased by Mike Fegley of Fegley Fast Fill Mobil, Andreas, for the high bid of $410.

Grand champion market lamb of the Carbon County Fair exhibited by Ashley Barry was purchased by Herman B. Snyder Plumbing and Heating, Lehighton, for $400.

Atkins Judges Blue Valley Farm Show Swine Show

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

BANGOR (Northampton Co.) — Dan Atkins, Lebanon, a former breeder of swine and a graduate of Penn State University, judged the market swine show at the Blue Valley Farm Show recently. A dairy and animal science major, Atkins was a member of the meats and livestock judging teams while at Penn State and currently works with the livestock club and judging team of Lebanon County.

For his champion fitter of the market swine show Atkins selected Josh Bauman from the junior — first-year class. Atkins liked the way Bauman had all the points clean on the hog and had the hog looking real sharp for the day's competition. The champion showman title went to senior Joel Geiger who Atkins described as being a very smooth and steady showman and also complimented Geiger on keeping the pig out where the judge could see him. Geiger, 17, is a senior at Northampton High School and the son of Sherwood and Kathy Geiger. Geiger has also started his own swine breeding project with several litters to his credit.

Reserve champion fitter and reserve champion showman honors went to Nicole Kondziela, Moore Township, from the senior division.

For his champion market hog of the competition Atkins selected the 221-pound winner of the light medium weight hogs exhibited by Christiana Graver. In describing this champion Atkins said the hog puts everything together into a nice package in regards to the ideals of the industry. It was a nice showing kind of hog with eye appeal but still put together the desired carcass package.

Graver, 12, daughter of Paul and Diane Graver of Lehighton, is in the seventh grade at Lehighton Middle School.

Kondziela's 233-pound Duroc entry of the medium weight class followed into the reserve grand champion market hog spot. Atkins described the reserve champion as being big framed, lean muscled, fresh in appearance, and trim yet carrying a lot of muscle.

Graver and Kondziela followed with the grand champion and reserve champion pair of market hogs, respectively.

"It's just the love of it. I just enjoy farming, and I do think there can be a future. We're willing to try new things," such as not only a pumpkin stand but also a meat store that the family operated for more than a year in the town.

Community Involvement Important

Staying involved in the community will prove key to a farm operation's friendly relationship with neighbors, said Gross.

Daniel is president of the South Central Cattlemen's Association and on the board of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association. His wife, Tina, is a membership processor for the York County Farm Bureau. Steven Jr. is a director of the York County Farm Bureau, and his wife Becky is on the school board.

Steven has served on the township board, Daniel sits on the zoning hearing board, and Steve Jr. is a township supervisor. In addition, they are involved with church, Jaycees, and the Lions Club.

"If you're going to complain about what's going on in your township, you need to be involved," said Gross. The leadership positions also allow the family to know what's going on right away, he said.

The smoke of nuclear power plant Three Mile Island, less than five miles away, hovers in the background.

They also host day care centers or school groups for tours on the farm. Although its purpose was to generate extra income, a "Farmer Dan's Pumpkin Stand" has also proven to build good relations, because guests may also have the opportunity to walk around the farm.

"When you farm in the community that you live in and people know you, they are more sympathetic," said Phyllis.

Especially when it is time to spray the crop, for instance, people can be reassured that the family is using good farming practices. "We farm here and we live here — of course were concerned" with safety and a clean environment, she noted.

"We try to be courteous. We don't spread manure before a big heavy downpour or on a Saturday." They have also gone through nutrient management training and are Beef Quality Assurance certified producers.

In addition, changing lifestyles have actually led to fewer opportunities to complain. With the onset of air conditioning and weekend trips with their boat or to their hunting lodge, said Steven, "people just aren't there anymore to do any complaining."

Many neighbors are more concerned about losing the open land to development, said Phyllis.

The family also keeps the land open for public hiking or hunting to build further relationships with the community. "It's part of being a good neighbor," said Gross.

The growth that surrounds the farm has brought escalating traffic, according to Phyllis. Since good fences make good neighbors, "we keep a good eye on our fence and work hard to keep the cows off the road," said Gross.

The Cattle Business

After the Gross family got out of the dairy business in 1966 for labor reasons, steers have been a part of the farm.

The division of labor has switched, according to Daniel, who mainly takes care of the beef animals. He has a degree in ag engineering while his brother, who maintains the crops, has a degree in animal husbandry. The brothers graduated from SUNY Cobleskill.

"Both of us couldn't be involved with both aspects," he said. "We needed to specialize." In 1995 they also added 11 brood cows, a number that has grown to 137 head, with bred heifers.

Most of the cows calves in the spring, with the majority of them born in March or April.

"The cows were a pretty good PR (public relations) move," said Gross. The neighbors, he said, enjoy watching the cattle and calves.

The cattle are divided into weight groups on four of the properties. The 400-700-pound cattle are brought onto Daniel's farm, the receiving lot, where they are vaccinated, dewormed, tagged, and monitored in the pasture for 30 days.

Since they purchase their cattle from sale barns, as well as private sources, they believe that the time spent backgrounding their own cattle is necessary.

"It's still fun to go to the markets," said Gross, who does much of the buying. "I've been going to the market since I was old enough to walk."

When the animals reach 700-1,000-pounds they are moved in groups of 50-60 at a time to the next farm, which has rations tailored to fit their needs, before they are moved to the home farm to finish for market.

They buy cattle (they feed steers and heifers) year-round and send out three loads a month. The family does their own trucking.

The farm has weathered ups and downs in the cattle business. "You have to hang in there year in and year out — you can't jump in and out of it," according to the market situation, he said.

An additional challenge this year came in the form of the drought, which took their corn crop down to a quarter of its capacity. They may purchase corn to finish the cattle, or sell a few head before they are finished — both short-term solutions, hopes Gross. They started feeding the brood herd July 15 this year, which they usually begin in mid-October.

"I always knew I wanted to be in farming," Daniel said. Over the years cattle have proven to his favorite part of the vocation.

He spent some time crunching numbers to determine if the farm would be more profitable if it were entirely fenced for a cow-calf operation.

However, the number of head to make it feasible, plus the thought of late-night cow checks, has put that idea to rest, he said.

New Farmers, New Generation

Pennsylvania Farm Link

UNDERSTANDING WHAT SUCCESSION IS

Planning for your successor, or someone to take over your farm, is the most important task you need to complete if you want your farm to survive into the next generation. Yet, according to some recent statistics, many farm families have not identified a successor for their family business or even talked to family members about what will happen to the farm when they die.

Succession means choosing and grooming someone to take over your farm, planning for the future, coping with the transition, communicating the change to family members and business associates, and letting go gracefully. It is a process that is about family, people and relationships, ownership and management, what is fair, and driven by your family's values, wants, and concerns. It is not an event, about one person's problem, minimizing taxes, equality, or driven by technical issues handled by lawyers or accountants. In other words, you need to talk to family members and make decisions for your farm's future based on family needs and discussions.

Passing on your farm can trigger powerful emotions for both the older and the younger generation. Generally, the senior generation is concerned about the capability of the younger generation, letting go of a business they spent a lifetime building, what to do when they step down, and facing their own mortality. The junior generation is concerned about being able to handle the business well, taking on full responsibility, possibly without guidance from the senior generation, and how to change or expand the operation to become or remain profitable.

This process always involves change, a constant in life. While it is necessary for any business, it can be difficult. Many farmers are naturally tempted to resist these changes. Ultimately, the way you view and act upon these changes will determine whether they are healthy and beneficial or damaging and chaotic. You can greatly influence the outcome and smooth the transition with careful planning.

With change comes a sense of loss. We're losing the way we did things, our patterns, and our ideas. This sense of loss is normal. It helps if we can talk with someone about our feelings of sadness, anxiety, or anger that come with loss. And we need to keep in mind that change opens the door for renewal and continued viability of the farm. If we approach the process with a sense of exploration and discovery, the transition to the next generation can be a positive experience.

Being reluctant to step down and turn your life's work over to someone else, even if it is your son or daughter, may be difficult, but failing to make plans for your successor can have dire consequences on your farm and your family. Grooming your successor is a key step in a successful farm transfer. Your role in helping the successor achieve the degree of training and competence they need to run the business is critical. You then need the courage and trust to step aside and let the successor take over.

Want to learn more about passing on the farm? Come to our winter workshops scheduled for the following times and locations: Nov. 13 at the Penn State Fruit and Research Center in Biglerville, Nov. 20 at the Garden Gate Restaurant in Prospect, Dec. 17 at the Lycoming County extension office in Montoursville, and Jan. 22 at the Sunset West Restaurant in Pleasant Gap.

November," he said.

Four herd bulls sire half of the calf crop, while the other half are AI-sired. Three of the four bulls are homebred.

"We've been operating more and more as a closed herd for the last several years," said Livingston. "The health status is just simplified by not bringing in anything from outside."

"We keep so many records, so we know more about a bull that we raised in our own program," he said. Since the farm has a cow's pedigree, plus information on carcasses and ultrasound, they can measure more traits more effectively about each of the South Branch animals, said Livingston. He prefers that the farm sample and prove their own bulls.

"There would be nothing more gratifying than to raise and prove out a bull to be put into stud service and put into significant use across the industry," he said. "A lot of the work that we do is geared toward that, with all the data we collect."

Calving Time

Approximately two-thirds of the cows calve in the spring and the remaining third in the fall.

This arrangement lets the bulls rest for several months between breeding seasons, spreads labor requirements, and offers differing marketing opportunities for the calves.

Two calf crops spread the marketing out over more of the year, which helps with cash flow, according to Livingston. "The marketing opportunity for the fall calves are almost always greater than for the spring program," he said. "The cattle have an age advantage over spring-born calves."

As feeder calves, they are at weaning age for when grass is greening, so the price is at a premium for the calves. They also seem to hit a hole in the market to command a premium as finished cattle, according to Livingston.

One challenge facing fall-born calves is the winter mud. "Mud gets to be cumbersome with young calves nursing," he said. "Cattle handle cold temperatures well, but mud gets to be pretty devastating."

The cattle calving in the fall are checked morning and evening. The spring calvers are checked more often, however, since there are more cows calving and more environmental conditions. Twins and bad weather are some of the biggest concerns during calving season, he said.

This coming calving season will begin about January 29. However, the biggest month is in February, and "they'll trickle on into March and the first part of April," he said.

"One change we're going to try this winter is pregnancy testing by ultrasound instead of strictly by palpation for a more accurate estimate of when cows are due," said Livingston. This allows them to sift off the bottom 25 of the last cows and have them wintered separately. This arrangement, said Livingston, should cut feed costs.

The later-calving cows will be the last animals off the corn stalk grazing area, and will be given the lower-quality hay since they will be calving in the last part of March or early April, when the pastures begin to green up.

The cows are separated into several groups designated by when they are expected to calve. Now, instead of running to three different places to calve, the animals are grouped, allowing Livingston to do feed partitioning since the nutritional needs differ. "We can give the cows closest to calving higher quality orchardgrass and the first cutting hay, which tests higher in nutrients."

There are three groups: first-calf heifers, early calving mature calves, and later calving mature cows. Only two groups should calve at a given time, he said.

As the cows approach 2-3 weeks before their expected due date, they are sorted off of the herd in the wintering field, given a precalving vaccination, and put into the calving field, where there are 20-30 other cows that are checked several times a day.

The setup also simplifies matters if bad weather threatens, said Livingston. "We'll pull in six or 10 of the closest-calving cows overnight in snow or bad weather," he said. In fact, the system is "vitally important in the spring, with mud and more weather concerns," he said.

The calving fields are not grazed for months before they are used, so the grass has a chance to grow to 10-12 inches.

This helps keep the calves out of the mud, "almost like they're calving on a bedded field," he said. Also, "the cows do utilize that. They'll eat very little hay the first couple of weeks as they graze that stockpiled forage."

Once the calf gets its feet under it, and is able to nurse for a day or two, the pair is moved to a third field. This "doesn't allow calf manure to build up on the calving field, which I really think cuts down on the cases of scours,

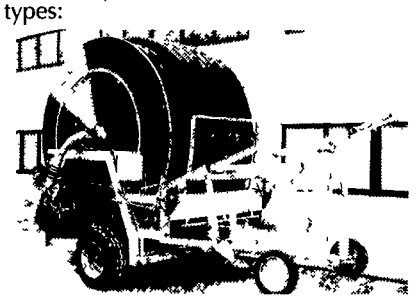
"TICO/FERBO HOSE REELS"

Now, a new generation of automatic hard hose reels that feature variable travel speed selection with automatic constant compensation to provide uniform irrigation over entire length of pass, and operate at low input pressure to easily, efficiently, economically irrigate or spread liquid manure.

TICO, a leader in irrigation systems for over 30 years, also offers these other types:



• WHEEL ROW
• GIANT SPRINKLER
• HAND MOVE • TRICKLE
• LIQUID MANURE AND WASTE WATER DISPOSAL

Also virtually all makes of couplers, fittings and gaskets, plus pumps, pipe, diesel, gas, and electric motors.

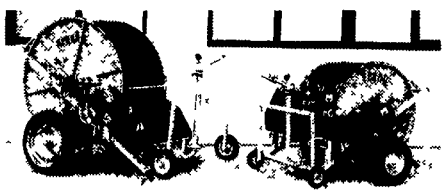
Need Irrigation or Waste Water Disposal?
CHOOSE AMERICA'S PREMIER TRAVELER FROM TICO/FERBO

• 52 Different Models
• 5 Drive Systems • 15 Hose Lengths

From 30-630 gallons per minute output and with hose lengths from 395 ft. up to 1650 ft. Standard features include Automatic Speed Compensation, galvanized cart and stabilizer legs, turntable, pto wind-up and optional hydraulic legs and cart lifting.



Economic Irrigation: With low input pressure requirements and constant speed irrigation, FERBO Travelers remain the leaders in low cost automatic irrigation. There isn't another traveler available that is simpler to operate or less expensive to maintain.

Waste Water Disposal: Our engine driven travelers are the simplest and most accurate on the market. Our computer controlled speed regulation ensures 99% accuracy to meet Federal/State design criteria while our simple yet efficient engine/gearbox drive ensures low maintenance.

Plus: We manufacture and market a complete line of: Slurry pumps, pump fittings, irrigation pumps, wheel row, giant sprinklers, hand move, trickle center pivots.

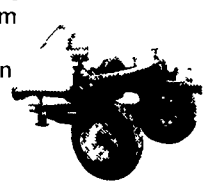
ROVATTI SLURRY PTO DRIVE PUMPS

Rovatti TL slurry pumps are high-pressure slurry pumps with a unique "bolt on" chopper system

The standard pump features a high efficiency open-vane impeller with an interchangeable wear ring and fixed cutting blade to handle all but the very toughest of straw, hay or other difficult residuals. For these conditions, the chopper unit can be simply bolted to the pump where it is driven by the existing pump shaft, enabling it to handle virtually any waste products requiring chopping.

A number of additional features make these the most versatile and reliable units on the market:

- Special permanently lubricated mechanical seal for longer life
- Over-sized bearings
- Lubricated chopper shaft bearings
- Chopper shaft shear-pin to reduce risk of damage to the shaft and impeller
- A range of four tractor pto pumps and four bare-shaft pumps with flows from 105-1000 gpm
- Replaceable wear ring
- 540 rpm or 1000 rpm speeds
- Finest grade cast iron for high efficiency
- Unique water-cooled gearbox for extended gear life.



The pump is mounted on a heavy-duty wheeled cart with pto shaft, 6" quick-action suction fittings and 4" discharge fittings as standard.

since they're calving in a clean environment."

Scours may be transmitted by another calf's manure on the cow's teats.

Weaning

"The biggest thing we try to do with our weaning is to make it as stress-free as possible," said Livingston.

The calves get their first round of vaccines in late January for the fall calves, and the first half of July for the spring calves.

Two-thirds of the cows calve in the spring, with the remaining one-third calving in the fall, providing different marketing opportunities for the calves.

"We come back about a month later and vaccinate the heifer calves for brucellosis and give booster shots to all the calves at that time. When we go to wean, usually it's just a matter of taking weaning weights and worming them — they're not being stressed other than weaning," he said.

In the past they had penned calves in the feedlot or barnyard area and moved cows of earshot. Although the method worked, "I read about some research that suggested that it's less stressful to wean through the fence," he said. The experiment has yielded some positive results.

"It seemed like if the calves can go up and make sure their mother is still there, they'll just go right back to eating. There's not as much bawling."

When the calves were locked up, he said, "we totally changed their diet from grass and milk to hay and grain."

When the calves are out on the field they are still on grass, yet can be introduced to grain at that time. Livingston places creep feeders near the fenceline, and "they find that grain pretty quickly," he said.

This year he weaned the fall heifers with this method and followed that by weaning the spring calves this fall through the fence.

When he put groups of calves together that had been weaned the different ways, "it was obvious how much better filled and conditioned the calves on pasture were. They were just looking a lot more satisfied than the calves that came out of the barn," he said.

Another benefit to weaning on pasture is that the calves are not weaned in barns located near neighbors' homes. "Neighbors have to be understanding, but we have to be courteous. If we work hard to accommodate neighbors, it will be a little easier (for the nonfarm neighbors) to overlook the things we can't control," Livingston said.

The farm sends the calves to a custom feeder in Lancaster County, "which allows us to get data back," he said. "We wanted to keep the cattle close to home."

Factoring in trucking costs and lower fed cattle prices out West also convinced Livingston to keep the calves close to home. Also, "this is our main marketing area for breeding stock, so we felt that we should finish here, too."

Growing up on a dairy farm gave him experience in working with cattle, which Livingston augmented by graduating with a degree in animal production from Penn State. He is joined by his wife, Darlene, an at-home mother who helps out with data entry and takes care of their daughter and son.

MILC Payments Require Production Record Updates

'Computer Glitch' Won't Allow Transition Payments For Partial Records

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Dairy farmers who apply for federal Milk Income Loss Contract (MILC) payments must submit full production records from the period of December 2001 through September 2002 in order to receive their first payment, according to Kathy Heil of the Lancaster County Farm Service Agency (FSA).

Since Oct. 18, the FSA has been authorized under the Farm Bill to send payments to dairy farmers for periods when the Boston Class I milk price is less than $16.95 per hundredweight.

Heil said that farmers who submitted applications that do not include production records through September cannot be paid until the records are updated.

For example, farmers who applied in August without later submitting production records through September will not be paid until they do so.

Previously, FSA officials thought payments would be paid to farmers for a shorter transition period. On Oct. 18, however, they discovered that the administrative setup would not authorize payments until production records are submitted for the entire period of December 2001 through this September.

"It's a computer glitch," Heil said, explaining the misunderstanding.

As of this Wednesday, about 600 dairy producers from Lancaster County have applied for payment. About 270 of those have submitted complete records for the transition period and have received payment, Heil said.

Producers who have not included the last several months of production evidence with their application can fax, mail, or deliver the evidence to the Farm Service Agency, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 2, Lancaster, PA 17601, fax (717) 393-7289.

Producers in other counties should report to their local FSA office.

To date, about $3 million has been paid to Lancaster County dairy farmers under the new program.

A typical small dairy of 50 cows in Lancaster County is eligible for payments of roughly $10,000 for a 12-month period based on Class I milk prices since last December, Heil said. However, declining prices in the last several months will likely make that rate increase for future payments.

While only about a third of Lancaster County producers have applied so far, Heil said she believes many of them, especially the Amish, are waiting for their production records and applications to be submitted through their milk buying companies.

"We still haven't got any regulations on (farmers) receiving payments through dairy companies," Heil said.

The last time federal payments were available to dairy farmers — through the Dairy Market Loss Assistance program in 2000-2001 — Heil said about 800 Lancaster County producers applied for the funds.

Heil expects more than 800 farmers to eventually apply for the MILC program "because it involves more money," she said.

For MILC payments beginning after the transition payment, farmers will have a choice of receiving the funds on a monthly or quarterly basis, as long as they continue to submit production records on time.

Heil also noted that payments for fiscal year 2003 — which started Oct. 1 — will not begin until January of 2003, at the earliest.

Berks County Farm-City Event Honors Longtime Farm Owners

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

Wyomissing (Berks Co.) — For the 19th time, members of the Berks County agriculture and agribusiness industry gathered to celebrate agriculture with awards and a presentation about the annualFarm-City exchange.

The Berks County Chamber of Commerce Farm-City Council sponsored the Berks County Farm-City Banquet Thursday evening at the Sheraton Reading Hotel.

Dr. Robert and Helene Dreisbach were honored with one of two Public Relations in Agriculture awards. The Dreisbachs, Hamburg,have 115 registered Jersey animals on 120 acres. Dr. Dreisbach is doing small animal veterinary work from the farm office. Helene is national director of the National Jersey Cattle Club.

The second Public Relations in Agriculture Award went to the Berks County Planning Commission. During the 1990s, the planning commission initiated a major effort to encourage more townships to develop effective agriculture preservation zoning.

Through the commission's Agriculture Zoning Incentive program, about 60,000 acres in 12 townships were designated effective agriculture preservation areas.

Phina Bodock won the Woman in Agriculture Award. Bodock is best known for her work as a county executive director of the Farm Service Agency (FSA).

Bodock started her FSA career as a program assistant and became county executive director in 1989. She will be retiring in a few months.

The Farm-City exchangees were Brendan Fehily, a news reporter for Channel 69 WFMZ for the past six months, and Mark Hoch, dairy farmer on the Hoch homestead.

Mark was given a tour of the Channel 69 station and helped Fehily gather a story at the Penn State Berks campus about cell phones. Fehily helped out with the daily chores on the farm. "A lot of people have the image of a guy sitting on a stool (to milk), and it's certainly not like that anymore. It's a very interesting process."

Fehily also helped to scrape down the barn. "I learned that cows produce a lot more than milk," he said.

Honored for having farms in the family for more than 250 years were, from left, Mark and Bernice Hoch, Elmer and Ruth Petershirm, Richard H. Yoder and Richard A. Yoder, Joseph Schlegel (kneeling), Harold and Fern Adam, Mark and Janine Dreibelbis, and Lester and Faye Miller.

Berks County farms with 250 or more years of family ownership included properties owned by Richard A. Yoder, with a family farm for 288 years; Kathryn Kauffman Stahler (caretaker Elmer Petersheim), 275 years; Mark and Bernice Hoch, 274 years; Joseph Schlegel, 264 years; Lester and Faye Miller, 261 years; Harold and Fern Adam, 259 years; and Mark and Janine Dreibelbis, 252 years.

Accepting the Public Relations in Agriculture Award is Glenn Knoblauch and Cheryl Auchenbach, Berks County Planning Commission, and Dr. Robert Dreisbach. Far right is Ernest Heckman, master of ceremonies.

Trust Dinner Nov. 14

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County has preserved more farms and acreage than any other county in the nation,more than 50,000.

This spirit of cooperation will be recognized during Lancaster Farmland Trust's annual dinner on Thursday, Nov. 14, at the Quality Inn and Suites, Oregon Pike in Lancaster.

A welcome reception and silent auction will begin at 5:45 p.m. with dinner at 6:30 p.m. The silent auction will again feature items produced on some of the Trust's preserved farms. All proceeds from the auction go toward helping to preserve farmland.

Fifteen farm families (a total of 18 farms) who have preserved their farms this year will be honored with land benefactor awards.

For more information, call (717) 293-0707.

Farming Forecast

After a dry couple of days with mild weather, unsettled weather will return early this week. A cold front will bring a couple of showers to the area Sunday night into Monday with rainfall of 0.10-0.25 of an inch. A bigger storm will come up from the south If the track is closer to the coast, then a significant rain storm is possible. However, there is a chance the storm may cut too far west

Dandie says...

INCREASE YOUR PROFITS AND PUT A SMILE ON YOUR FACE!

Managed Grazing Works

If you are a cow person, you will most likely love grazing. Managed grazing is cow friendly, family friendly, environmentally friendly, and financially friendly. Before you go down the difficult road of a conventional expansion, do serious research on grazing. The smile on a grazier's face tells the true story. In the future you'll still likely need to expand, but do it the easy way through managed grazing. Your family and your cows will thank you.

"Dandie enjoys managed grazing, so will your herd!"

Harvestore® Haylage at Carl-A Farms

Tracy and Steve's father Carl Snyder, Pitman, Schuylkill Co., PA, began feeding haylage in 1974, when he built the farm's first Harvestore® structure.

The Snyders' forage program includes 50-55% moisture haylage fed 2:1 to corn silage. Their 80-cow herd is averaging approximately 28,000 lbs. milk, 1000 lbs. fat and 900 lbs. protein.

Tracy and Steve installed a new Alliance® unloader in their 20x90 Harvestore structure in May of 1998. Their Alliance unloader has unloaded haylage for 1,640 days on the original stainless steel cutter chain and is still going! They automatically lubricate their Alliance chains twice weekly.

Honey Sweetens Beekeeping Family's Prospects

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Tim Miller's hobby is fast turning into a full-time job not only for himself but also his wife Kelly.

"Bees are fascinating creatures," Tim said of his reason for purchasing a few bee hives several years ago.

Tim Miller examines one of his hives. The beekeeper processes about 30,000 pounds of honey annually with 7,000 pounds from his own hives.

In the beginning, his wife Kelly didn't share his affinity for bees. She saw his hobby as a distraction from spending time with the family that includes Caleb, 9; Elizabeth, 8; Julie, 6; and Angela, 4.

"He'd work 12-14 hour days at his carpentry job and then come home and work with the bees for an hour," Kelly said.

"I wanted to spend more time with the family too," Tim said.

"But I also liked working close to nature. Growing up, I always thought I'd be a farmer, and beekeeping was as close to agriculture that I seemed to be able to get. When the bees need work, you've got to do it."

The answer to their dilemna came in an unexpected way — expand. Miller was offered the opportunity to purchase Wampler's Honey, a well-known Lancaster County business and second largest honey packer in the county.

With the purchase came five acres, a large house and shop for processing honey and for developing new products.

Today, Kelly is president of the Lancaster County Honey Producers and abuzz with ideas to capitalize on honey and beeswax. She has founded The Honeybee Shoppe and makes handcreams, lip balm, and candles in numerous fragrances to sell locally and to beekeepers across the state.

The bees continue to be Miller's complete responsibilty.

"Beekeeping and honey sales cannot support the family," Miller said. But he sees potential in diversification, which means pollination by moving his 190 hives into orchards and farms.

The bees travel from blossom to blossom in search of nectar, which transfers pollen from plant to plant, which fertilizes the plants and causes them to bear fruit.

The USDA estimates that about one-third of the human diet is derived from insect-pollinated plants and the honeybee is responsible for 80 percent of this pollination.

Miller works long hours in the spring. He begins placing his hives around the end of April in sites all over the county.

Orchards are not allowed to spray during the pollination period, according to Miller.

Miller harvests the honey in late spring to early fall. In the spring are orchard crops, followed by vine crops such as melons and cucumbers in May. Pumpkins are in August.

Some farm sites don't enable the bees to produce as much honey as others. Miller regularly examines the hives to ensure they are strong and the bees busy. He may need to move the hives to a location where there is a more abundant nectar source.

The color and flavor of honey varies depending on what blossoms the bees visited in search of nectar. Because of the floral sources, no two honeys are exactly alike in flavor, color, and nutritional content.

The most popular flavors the Millers process are alfafa and clover, but they also sell buckwheat, orange blossom, tulip, and wildflower.

Honey color ranges from a faint goldent tint to a dark amber brown. Generally lighter colored honeys are mild in flavor and the dark ones such as buckwheat have a strong flavor.

The processing equipment includes a warmer, strainer, bottling, and uncapping machine.

"Processing honey is not difficult," Miller said.

He annually processes 30,000 pounds of honey of which 7,000 pounds come from his own hives. The remainder is unprocessed honey he purchases from Dutch Gold Honey, Rohrerstown.

For consumers who question why honey prices have tripled within the last year, Miller explained that a shortage of honey nationwide has driven up the costs. Although he attempts to keep his prices down, his costs

One versatile ingredient to add flavor and a quick energy boost to snacks, main dishes, and desserts is nature's own sweetener — honey. With no additives or preservatives, honey digests easily, and enhances recipes for appetizers, marinades, vegetables, dips, glazes, pies, cookies, and pastries.

There are many different honey varieties, which actually give foods a different flavor. Orange blossom, clover, alfalfa, buckwheat, blueberry, strawberry, and many others are available. So experiment.

If your grocer does not carry a specific variety, write to the nation's largest packer of premium specialty honeys, Dutch Gold Honey, 2220 Dutch Gold Dr., Lancaster, PA 17601-1997, or call (717) 393-1716.

OLD-FASHIONED APPLE DUMPLINGS

6 medium-sized baking apples
6 refrigerated prepared pie crusts (unbaked)
1 cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup wild flower honey
1½ cups water
¼ cup butter

Peel and core apples. Leave apples whole.

Cut each pie crust into a square, and place an apple on each. Fill cavity in apple with honey and sprinkle with cinnamon. Pull corners of dough up around apples, and pat dough around apples to cover completely.

With moistened fingertips, fasten edges securely. Place dumplings one-inch apart in a greased baking pan.

For sauce: combine brown sugar, alfalfa honey, water, and cinnamon in 1½-quart saucepan. Cook for 5 minutes over medium heat, then remove from heat and add butter.

Pour sauce over dumplings. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-45 minutes, basting with sauce occasionally until fork inserts easily into apple. Serve hot with milk or cream. Yield: 6 dumplings.

Honey Queen Is Third Sister To Attain State Crown

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — From childhood, Erin Fisher seemed to be predestined to become the state's honey queen. She had two older sisters who filled the position.

But Erin said, "Growing up I always said that I wanted to be a beekeeper, not a honey queen. I wanted to get my hands sticky."

By the time she was 18 years old, Erin realized the honey queen position was a great opportunity to promote the honey industry.

As the third member of her family to attain the Queen Bee crown, Erin said that she had plenty of experience in helping her sisters with promotions and working with the industry.

She is the daughter of Paul and Sandy Fisher and helps with the family's Cherry Valley Apiaries in Stroudsburg.

The family has 150 hives that they use for pollination in area orchards and farms. They also bottle their own honey and sell in local stores.

"I started helping when I was four years old. I had my own bee suit and gloves and went along with my dad," Erin said.

When she was in first grade, Erin got stung on her eyelid. "It was traumatic but that helped me become brave," Erin said.

In sixth grade Erin had an allergic reaction and went to an allergist to become desensitized. She was given a series of shots of watered down bee venom to built up her immune system.

In high school, Erin got her own smoker to use to extract the honey from hives. She helps to deliver the bottled honey, but said that her favorite part of beekeeping is teaching others about it.

National Honey Queen Erin Fisher has a brochure of her favorite recipes for using honey. To request a copy, send a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope to The Pennsylvania State Beekeepers Association, R.D. 1, Box 315, Canton, PA 17724.

"It's a lost art in a sense, few people know anything about it but are interested," she said.

Erin is a member of the Monroe County Beekeepers Association.

She combines her beekeeping publicity responsibilities while studying nursing at Penn State University, University Park.

Those interested in booking beekeeping and honey presentations for schools and associations should contact Linda Hackenburg at (570) 568-2337.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

"What's the plan?" I asked The Farmer.

"No plan," he replied.

Like most dairy farmers, our lives are structured by cows. Twice daily milkings, no exceptions, no holidays. No excuses. But harvest delays from a lengthy stretch of soggy weather, the milking schedule covered, and fall leaves still pretty on the hillsides offered the perfect "no plan" opportunity. We tossed a couple of bags with extra clothes and a few snacks in the car and departed. With no plan.

There was a general destination, the Finger Lakes region of central New York. Some folks escape to shop, some to antique, some to paint, some to camp, etc. Our "no plan" adventures inevitably wend through at least some agriculture country, since The Farmer thrives on studying other farming endeavors, sometimes gleaning ideas from what he spies in passing. Central New York promised lots of ag to eyeball.

Bright sunshine highlighted the hills of gold, orange and red against Cayauga Lake's sparkling waters, bordered with rolling plateaus of grain farming, and scattered dairies. Midafternoon, an ominous, blue-black cloud front ambushed us from the west. Our bright day flipped to a blustery mist as snow squalls chased raindrops.

Farmers take pride in not being stopped by a little "weather," so we continued northward through farm country veiled in mist and intermittent snow. As we topped the lake, with daylight not quite gone, The Farmer altered his "no plan": "Let's head for the big lake."

So northward we continued as darkness fell and suppertime looked like midnight. Less than an hour farther into the inky-black evening, we wound through quiet, bayside town appearing to be tucked in for the night. Winds blew fiercely off Lake Ontario, sending unseen waves crunching onto the shore, sounding not particularly hospitable to strangers with no plan.

Weary and hungry, we stumbled onto the sort of place that turns such adventures into memories — a stately bed and breakfast just yards from the lakeshore, with off-season rates and no other guests. I managed to stay awake just long enough to enjoy a tasty hot meal at a small restaurant nearby.

At daylight, I pushed aside the curtain and babbled: "Look, look, look, look...!" Outside the windows was a Christmas-card scene, snow piled several inches high on the bushes and weighing heavily on the yellow-orange leaves of huge, overhanging sugar maple. Our hostess was less enthusiastic at winter's unexpected early onset as she shoveled away five inches of the heavy, wet "lake effect."

Her hearty breakfast fueled us southward, though disappointed that lake visibility had been a mere few hundred yards in the falling snow. Orchards of apple trees bent low under their leafy burden, snow-capped red fruit still dangling in some trees. Snow squalls repeatedly beat back overtures of sunshine as we wound back down through the Finger Lakes. Still, it was lovely, with colorful hillsides muted by the mistiness and snow, acres and acres of orderly vineyards, neat dairy and crop farms, with inevitable pauses as we passed farm equipment dealers.

Darkness was descending as we turned in through the pines toward the hunting cabin that evening, only to be stopped short by a driveway full of fallen limbs. "Lake effect" had piled up on the colored leaves of the tall hardwoods around the cabin, scattering limbs large and small as they broke from the weight. But soon the humble cabin, warmed by a crackling woodstove, was as cozy as our gracious Victorian accommodations of the previous evening. Hot, canned soup, with our fruit and snacks, provided an adequate supper. "No plan" ventures generally at least include sleeping bags and a few extra provisions for possible cabin stays.

Blue skies, bright sunshine and the hugs of grandchildren welcomed us back late the next afternoon.

And how nice it is to be able to plan on any brief escape coming to such a pleasant ending.

Montgomery County Extension Agent Receives Achievement Award

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Mary Concklin, Montgomery County extension agent for horticulture, was honored with the Achievement Award at the National Association of County Agricultural Agents (NACAA) Annual Meeting and Professional Improvement Conference recently in Savannah, Ga.

The AA is presented to the top one percent of agents in each state who have less than 10 years of service in extension. The selection is made by the agents' peers in each state. This year 60 agents won the award at the national level.

Concklin is responsible for commercial and consumer horticulture, vegetable, fruit, and Master Gardener programs in her county. She initiated a quarterly newsletter, bringing readership to 5,100 in nine issues. Master Gardener numbers have increased from 25 to 85 in three years. She delivers courses, symposiums, workshops, and conferences as a chairperson, educator, facilitator, and a committee member. She also initiated research in "Developing Nutrient Management Guidelines for Woody Ornamentals."

Mary had been an active member of the state association and also belongs to a number of other horticultural associations. In addition to national recognition, Concklin will receive a Nittany Lion statue and an award from the Pa. Rural Electric Association.

Well Preserved

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

Cranberries

Cranberries are one of three fruits native to America. Pilgrims named them "craneberries" because the flower looked like the head of the sand crane. Cranberries are a low-growing evergreen plant with flowing, deep green vines that turn burgundy in the fall. Massachusetts is the leading producer of cranberries followed by Wisconsin and New Jersey.

During the 1800's cranberries were put in barrels and put on schooners and whaling ships for the sailors to eat to prevent scurvy. One-half cup provides 10 percent of the U.S.R.D.A. for vitamin C. They are low in sodium and contain fiber and pectin. While one-half cup berries provides only 30 calories, the sugar used to sweeten them increases the caloric content significantly.

Fresh cranberries are harvested mid-September through early December. By the end of December they will likely be hard to find in your local supermarket. Prices are usually lower at the beginning of the season.

Unless you live in a cranberry growing area, you will buy fresh cranberries in the 12-ounce plastic bag. Watch for store specials and buy several bags when they are on sale-use some now and freeze the rest to use later.

Packers indicate that berries can be frozen in the bag in which they are purchased. Double wrapping by putting the commercial bag in a resealable plastic bag will prevent freezer dehydration. When you are ready to use the frozen berries, you simply rinse them in cold water, drain them, and use them without thawing. If the berries are thawed before they are used they will soften and lose their crispness.

According to processors, frozen cranberries may be used for all recipes exactly as fresh cranberries are used. However, many people prefer to use the frozen berries in cooked dishes where a crisp texture is not expected.

Because most bags of fresh cranberries have a few soft berries, some stems, and an occasional leaf, you may prefer to stem, sort, wash, and drain the berries before freezing them. Lift the cranberries from the water so that soil and stems do not redeposit on the berry. Excess moisture can be removed from the berries by placing them between two layers of towels. Cranberries can be frozen using a dry pack by placing them into containers leaving ½" headspace. They can also be frozen first on a tray and then packed into containers as soon as they are frozen.

If desired, a syrup pack can be made using a cold 50 percent syrup (equal amounts of sugar and water). Your favorite cooked cranberry sauce may also be frozen. Cool it at room temperature for not over two hours before freezing. Cranberries can be canned whole in heavy (40 percent) syrup (2 ¾ cup sugar per quart of liquid). Drop the berries into the boiling syrup and continue to boil 3 minutes before packing into hot jars leaving ½ inch headspace. Process pints or quarts in a boiling water bath for 15 minutes.

A soft cranberry sauce may be canned by cooking one quart of cranberries in one cup water until soft.

Then press through a fine sieve. Add two cups sugar and boil three minutes. Pour boiling hot sauce into hot jars leaving ½ inch headspace and process in a boiling water bath 15 minutes. This amount makes about 2 pints. To can a smooth-jellied cranberry sauce, the Ball canning book uses this recipe. Boil 4 ¼ cups cranberries in 1 ¾ cups water until the skins burst. Then press the mixture through a fine sieve or food mill. Add 2 cups sugar to the cranberry pulp and juice and boil almost to the gelling point (220F or liquid sheets off a spoon). Then ladle while hot into hot jars, leaving ¼ inch headspace and process 10 minutes in a boiling-water canner. This makes about 2 pints. To serve jellied sauce as a mold, pack sauce in straight-sided canning jars for easy removal.

Cranberries combine well with apples. Cranberry-apple relish compliments poultry, pork, or seafood nicely. The basic recipe uses four cups berries while the common 12-ounce bag of cranberries only contains three cups. Either use three-fourths of the recipe of buy two bags and use the left-over berries to make cranberry-orange bread or put a handful of cranberries in an apple pie or in stewed apples.

There are several methods of chopping the cranberries for this recipe. If using a blender, chop about half of the berries at a time. A food processor may be used being careful not to process the berries to a mush, or use the coarse blade of a food grinder. There may be some air bubbles when the relish is poured into the jars that can be released using a plastic bubble freer. Plan to have the water boiling in the water bath container when the relish is cooked so that the jars don't cool before being heated again in the water bath. There will be less shock to the glass from temperature extremes and the vacuum forms properly giving the jar a better seal.

Cranberry-Apple Relish

4 cups cranberries, chopped
1 pound apples, peeled, cored, chopped
2 ½ cups brown sugar
1 cup water
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup chopped walnuts

Combine cranberries, apples, brown sugar, and water in a large saucepot. Simmer over medium heat for 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Stir in cinnamon and walnuts; cook 5 minutes. Ladle hot relish into hot jars, leaving ¼ inch headspace. Adjust two-piece caps and process 15 minutes in a boiling-water bath. Yields 5 to 6 half-pints.

Fund-Raiser To Benefit Accident Victims

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

DELTA (York Co.) — A widespread community effort to help a southern York County Amish family devastated by a buggy accident has been launched by friends and neighbors of the stricken family.

Ben and Annie Ebersole and five of their children were returning from a visit in Lancaster County on the evening of Sunday, Oct. 27, when their buggy was run over from the rear by a van as they crossed the Norman Wood bridge. All seven in the family were seriously injured, and their horse killed, when they were hit from behind while nearing the bridge's York County side. The bridge spans the Susquehanna River between York and Lancaster counties and is the major path of travel between the southern part of the two counties.

Two of the Ebersole children have died from injuries received in the accident. Ben Ebersole died from injuries Wednesday. A daughter is in serious condition at Hershey Medical Center. Ebersole operated a home welding business serving many farm and rural customers in the southern part of York County.

"When our barn burned a few years ago, our Amish neighbors were right there to help us," said David Gemmill, Delta, one of the area residents helping to spearhead fund-raising efforts toward the Ebersole family's massive and mounting medical bills.

"So many people have been asking how they can help and what they can do. So a benefit fund has been started at the Bank of Lancaster County in Quarryville and we have a fund raiser planned for Nov. 16," Gemmill said.

The fund raiser will be held concurrently in two locations — the Airville Fire Hall, Airville, in York County and at Holtwood Supply, Holtwood, Lancaster County — from 10 a.m. through 5 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 16. Carryouts will be available, with a menu including chicken barbecue, a pig roast, pit roasted beef and ham, homemade soups and homemade baked goods. Carryout soups will be sold by the quart, with customers asked to bring their own containers.

"We have a special kid's event planned at noon," said Gemmill, of a "candy drop" scheduled for midday, weather permitting. The "candy drop" features the flyover of a helicopter which will descend to a low altitude and scatter candy for a scramble by the children.

Contributions to the "Ben and Annie Ebersole Family Benefit" fund may be sent in care of the Bank of Lancaster County, 4 Friendly Drive, Quarryville, PA 17566-9787.

For additional information on the benefit fund and planned activities, contact David Gemmill, Delta, (717) 456-7372, or Ron Miller, Airville, (717) 862-3019.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

It is a pleasure to share. For years I shared vegetables from my large garden, and now people are giving me things.

My sisters visited us last week and brought a bag of English walnuts. They also had a variety of mums. We also got green peppers and potato salad.

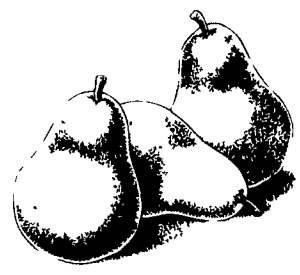
A lady who lives in my area phoned to say that she had lima beans that I could have. But, I do have a few of my own. However, I really appreciated the nice green beans and sweet potatoes that she gave us. My own saffron bed bloomed nicely in October.

Sometimes, long ago, I would take a basket and fill it with six or more vegetables and take it to a lady friend who I knew had no garden. Usually, it was a big surprise for them as they sorted through the basket. Now I'm being given things.

When our children visit to see how their father is coming along they do extra jobs for us. Our heavy air conditioners have been moved to a basement shelf. Our fence to protect the tomatoes has been taken down and stored. Our daughter from New Jersey even weeded the raspberries. Now that is job that we did not even do in a good year.

I've put some flowers in pots but I'm running out of space on the window sills. Let's hope the red, white and pink geraniums will bloom all winter. Some folks think of the dropped blossoms as "dirt" but I'm simply glad that they bloom.

Allen is still weak but we are hoping he will improve. He uses a cane as he moves from his bed to the table or the television.



New Hunting Regulations

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Under new antler restrictions, hunters in most Pennsylvania counties must abide by a three point on one side rule. Exceptions include the 10-county area of western Pennsylvania where hunters will be required to abide by a four point on one side antler restriction: Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Crawford, Erie, Indiana, Lawrence, Mercer, Washington and Westmoreland. Exceptions also include the six special regulations areas counties of Allegheny, Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Montgomery and Philadelphia, where hunters will be able to abide by the previous antler restrictions of one antler of three or more inches in length or one antler with at least two points. Junior military personnel, active duty citizens and certain disabled hunters may use previous antler restrictions.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission defines a point as an antler projection at least one inch long from base to tip. The brow tine and main beam tip will be counted as points regardless of length.

Hunters who mistakenly kill bucks that do not meet these qualifications must complete the harvest tag and attach it to the deer before moving it. The mistake must be reported within 12 hours to the regional office that serves the county where the buck was killed. Hunters are permitted to keep the deer but required to pay $25 restitution and surrender the antlers.

This year, unsold tags may be used to harvest antlerless deer on either public or private land in the county of issue. All hunters may also use crossbows during the statewide firearms deer season.

Hunters with questions regarding the upcoming season may contact the Game Commission in Harrisburg at (717) 787-4250. Additional information is also available on the Game Commission's Website: www.pgc.state.pa.us.

The Buzz About Honey

Did you know that sugar can be replaced by honey in most of your favorite recipes?

"Honey makes baked goods healthier, more moist, and better for you," said Erin Fisher, Pennsylvania Honey Queen.

She suggests substituting honey for up to one-half of the required sugar. With experimentation, honey can be substituted for all the sugar in some recipes.

Reduce the amount of liquid in the recipe by ¼ cup for each cup of honey used in baked goods.

Leah Glick writes she uses honey in place of sugar, by substituting equal amounts of honey, but reducing other liquid by ¼ cup.

Leah also recommends lowering the baking temperature about 25 degrees to prevent overbrowning of honey baked goods.

CREAM CHEESE DANISH

Dough recipe:
- ¼ cup warm water
- 1 tablespoon yeast
- 1 teaspoon honey

Combine water, yeast, and honey. Stir until dissolved. Set aside.
- ½ cup sour cream

Heat sour cream on low just until bubbly. Add:
- ¼ cup butter
- ¼ cup honey
- 1½ teaspoon salt

Stir until dissolved, cool to lukewarm. Add:
- 1 egg, beaten

Combine beaten egg with yeast mixture. Add:
- 2 cups flour

Mix well. Cover and refrigerate overnight (let raise until doubled in size).

Cream Cheese Filling:
- 8 ounces cream cheese filling
- ⅓ cup sugar (heaping)

Beat together well. Add, mixing well:
- ½ egg, beaten
- Pinch salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Divide dough into two portions. Roll out on floured surface into a 12x8-inch rectangle. Spread half of cream cheese mixture into center of each rectangle. Braid or fold over dough and pinch edges to seal. Place on greased baking sheet (with seam side down, slit each roll half way down in 2-inch intervals resembling a braid). Cover, let rise until doubled. Bake at 325 degrees for 12-15 minutes. Do not overbake.

BARBECUE TURKEY

- 3-4 pounds boneless/skinless turkey thighs
- 1¼ cup ketchup
- ½ cup water
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 1 teaspoon onion powder
- 2 tablespoons red wine
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ cup honey
- 1½ teaspoons ground mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper

Place all ingredients in medium-size roasting pan, and bake at 300 degrees for 4-6 hours or until meat is tender. Shred meat with two forks. Serve on rolls. Makes 8 servings.

SPICY HONEY AND PECAN GLAZED CHICKEN

- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 4 (6-ounce) boneless, skinless chicken breasts, trimmed of excess fat
- ½ cup chopped pecans
- 1 teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup honey
- ½ cup chicken broth
- 2 teaspoons white wine vinegar
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley

Heat butter and oil in large skillet (preferably non-stick) over medium heat. Add the chicken breasts and cook 12-15 minutes, turning once, until the chicken is lightly browned and cooked through. Transfer to a large plate.

Add the pecans to the pan and cook one minute, stirring constantly. Stir in red pepper flakes and salt; cook 20 seconds. Add honey, broth, and vinegar; stir well.

Return the chicken breasts to the pan along with any accumulated juices. Raise heat to high. When the liquid comes back to a boil, cook, basting chicken with the sauce and nuts, until the sauce is golden brown and syrupy, about 5-7 minutes.

Sprinkle with parsley and serve hot.

BROCCOLI SALAD

Combine in large bowl:
- 2 bunches broccoli (or ½ cauliflower), cut up
- 8 strips bacon, cooked, crumbled
- 3 hard-boiled eggs, chopped
- ½ cup chopped carrots

Combine the following and mix well:
- 1 cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
- ¼ cup honey
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon red wine vinegar

Add dressing to broccoli mixture, mix again. Serves 6-8.

PEANUT BUTTER OATMEAL COOKIES

- ½ cup butter
- ½ cup margarine
- 1 cup peanut butter
- ½ cup honey
- ½ cup brown sugar
- ¼ cup sugar

Combine ingredients and cream together thoroughly. Add, beating until fluffy:
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift the following together and add to the butter mixture:
- 1½ cups flour
- 1¼ teaspoons baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt

Stir in:
- 2½ cups quick oatmeal
- 1 cup mini chocolate chips

Drop batter by teaspoonful onto ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 325 degrees for 10-12 minutes. Makes approximately 6 dozen.

HONEY COFFEE CAKE

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup sugar
- ¼ cup shortening
- 1 egg
- ⅔ cup milk

Topping:
- 3 tablespoons soft butter
- ½ cup honey
- ¾ cup shredded coconut
- ¾ cup cereal flakes

Sift dry ingredients into a bowl. Cut in shortening. Add egg and milk, stirring only until all flour is moistened. Spread batter into greased 9-inch square pan. Cover with topping. Bake at 400 degrees for 25-30 minutes. Serve warm. Approximately 9 servings.

CRISP HONEY COOKIES

- ½ cup butter
- ½ cup honey
- 1¾ cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon ground cloves
- ⅓ cup wheat germ

Cream butter and honey. Sift together flour, baking soda, and spices, and mix in wheat germ. Combine dry ingredients with creamed mixture. Chill about one hour. Roll on lightly floured board to about ⅛-inch thickness. Cut with floured cookie cutter. Bake on greased cookie sheets in 350 degree oven, 8-10 minutes. Cool on rack, then spread thinly with frosting. Makes about 3 dozen.

HONEY ORANGE GLAZE FOR HAM

- 6-ounce can frozen orange juice
- 1¾ cup water
- ¾ cup honey
- 1 tablespoon corn starch
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Put orange juice, water, honey, and salt in saucepan. Blend cornstarch with 1 cup of the mixture and return to saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until it thickens and comes to a boil. Boil 2 or 3 minutes. Cool. Brush on ham. Honey glaze doesn't run off as some other glazes do.

Tea Benefits

There's nothing like sipping on a hot beverage in the morning, or when you're socializing with friends, but if coffee is your only selection of hot beverages, you could be making a better health choice—tea.

Tea is gaining popularity, and larger cities now have "tea houses" as well as "coffee houses." Why the new interest in this "old" beverage? Nutrition Research Specialist at Pritikin Longevity Center, James J. Kenney, PhD, RD, LD, FACN, gives the following health benefits that tea may provide:

• Tea (both black and green) contains a variety of plant chemicals called phytochemicals. The phytochemicals, called flavonoids, found in teas may reduce the tendency of blood platelets to stick to artery walls.

A recent study found a 70 percent lower risk of a fatal heart attack in those who consumed at least 2-3 cups of black tea a day compared to those who were not tea drinkers.

• Tea is good for your bones, too. The Archives of Internal Medicine (May 13, 2002) published a study indicating that those who drank tea for 10 or more years had the strongest bones. Tea is a good source of fluoride and other phytochemicals that may promote stronger bones.

The fluoride also makes tea good for your teeth. The tannins in tea may suppress the growth of plaque bacteria. Stronger teeth and less plaque are the keys to keeping your teeth into old age.

The natural phytochemicals in tea also act as antioxidants to neutralize free radicals providing a defense against a variety of cancers.

Tea does contain caffeine (unless it's decaffeinated), but for those wanting to decrease their caffeine consumption, tea is a better choice with 30-50 milligrams of caffeine per cup compared with coffee at 135 milligrams a cup.

The above health benefits are provided by both green and black tea, although some research does lean toward green tea as a better choice for cancer prevention. Green and black teas come from the same plant, but green tea is dried for a shorter time than black tea and does not go through the short fermenting process used for black tea.

There are many types of tea to try. Black tea has a stronger flavor. This is a good choice for those trying to switch from coffee to tea. English breakfast is probably the most popular form of black tea. Oolong tea looks like black tea, but has a more golden color, and a sweet flavor.

Green tea has a mild pleasant flavor, and is good hot or cold. There is a wide variety of herb teas on the market, but they have not been studied as the teas mentioned above, so their flavonoid content is not known.

Dietitian, Nancy Berkoff, suggests increasing your tea consumption by making iced tea. Chilling tea does not affect its health aspects.

To make the perfect iced tea she recommends bringing one cup of water per tea bag or teaspoon of dried tea to a rolling boil. Measure the tea into a glass container. (Plastic and metal tend to pick up extra flavors.) Pour the boiling water over the tea and allow it to steep to the desired strength. Don't leave the tea in too long or it will acquire an acidic taste. Add a little ice to speed the chilling process. Place your tea in the refrigerator and allow it to cool for several hours. Brewed tea will keep its flavor for at least two days in the refrigerator.

You can add more flavor to your tea by adding a splash of fresh fruit juice, or by freezing fruit juice in ice cube trays for fruity ice cubes.

Believe me, no one likes a large cup of Dunkin Donuts coffee more than I do, but research shows that I could be making a healthier beverage choice—next time I think I'll try tea. (But I'm still getting a donut!)

Time For Tea Could Help Diabetics

COLUMBUS, Ohio — I've heard that drinking tea could be good for people with diabetes. How does that work?

Well, there is evidence from testing on rat cells that suggests drinking tea might boost insulin activity. That would be good news for the 17 million Americans with diabetes, as well as the estimated 16 million who have pre-diabetes, or "impaired glucose tolerance."

With Type II diabetes, the body loses the ability to make enough insulin or effectively use the insulin that it does make. This allows glucose to build up in the blood, and that's something you definitely don't want. Over time, high blood sugar can endanger your eyes, kidneys, blood vessels, heart and limbs.

In a study published in the Journal of Agricultural and Food Chemistry, researchers tested tea's effect on fat cells from rats.

Fat cells are sensitive to insulin, so they make good testing material. The researchers mixed sugar, insulin and various tea extracts into the cells and watched what happened.

They found that plain old black tea, as well as green and oolong teas, boosted insulin activity as much as 15 times for up to six hours. Both caffeinated and decaffeinated teas had the same effect. However, adding milk, soy milk or non-dairy creamer decreased that boost in insulin activity significantly. Lemon juice had no effect.

The researchers have not tested tea's effects in humans, but they have identified the components that seem to have the most impact. An antioxidant called epigallocatechin gallate seemed to boost insulin activity the most, and it is found in all three types of tea. In black tea, tannins, theaflavins and other compounds also joined the effort.

Herbal teas — which aren't true teas at all because they don't come from the tea plant Camellia senensis — had no effect on insulin activity. The vast majority of instant teas also had no effect, and neither did commercially prepared iced teas.

This study adds to evidence gathered over the past 20 years in which scientists have uncovered numerous health benefits associated with antioxidants in tea. Studies suggest tea can have positive effects on atherosclerosis, high blood pressure, infectious diseases and immune response.

Scholarship Program Offers $1,000 To Ag Students

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Students pursuing careers in agriculture are encouraged to apply for scholarships sponsored by Agriliance, Land O'Lakes Feed and Croplan Genetics.

High school seniors from throughout the country who will enroll in a two- or four-year agronomy or livestock curriculum in the fall of 2003 are eligible to apply. Fifty $1,000 scholarships will be awarded.

"Students with leadership abilities and an interest in agriculture are needed to fill a variety of positions in our industry," said Annette Degnan, scholarship committee chairperson.Since its formation 13 years ago, the Careers in Agriculture scholarship program has awarded more than $350,000 in scholarships to rural youth.

Applications are available from participating local cooperatives or on the Agriliance Website (www.agrillance.com) in the Careers section or the Land O'Lakes Feed Website (www.lolfeed.com).

All applications must be postmarked by March 3, 2003. Winners will be notified in May. For more information or to request an application, call (800) 232-3639, Ext. 4584.

QUESTION — A fairly new homemaker wants recipes that are easy but taste wonderful to serve to guests. She would also enjoy any pointers to help entertain guests with ease.

QUESTION — How about some recipes for dried apple slices and other ways to use an abundance of apples?

ANSWER — For all those hunters who want to know what to do with the meat, Alma Martin, East Earl, should know. Last year, her family attained six deer. She sends in this recipe for deer jerky. She writes that her family likes to have plenty on hand to snack and chew on over the holidays and during an afternoon of family games. The men folks always want a bagful in their lunch—for healthy chewing. It's gone too soon.

Deer Jerky

3-5 pounds thinly sliced deer or beef meat. Lay on trays in a single layer. Make brine with the following ingredients:
½ teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon onion powder
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 tablespoon salt
2 tablespoons liquid smoke
1 cup warm water

Pour over meat until covered. Let stand to soak one day. Turn meat, soak one more day. Soak meat in refrigerator. Put in food dryer approximately six hours or however you like it. Keep in dry place.

ANSWER — Eleanor Heinsey, Denver, mislaid the recipe for Pineapple Carrot Cake that had been printed in this column. Thanks to B. Weaver, Stevens, for sending a recipe that she says is delicious.

Carrot Cake

2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons cinnamon
3 eggs
1½ cups vegetable oil
2 cups grated carrots
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup crushed, drained pineapple
1 cup coconut
½ cup chopped nuts

Combine ingredients and beat until well blended. Bake at 350 degrees for 50-60 minutes. When cool, frost with the following:
Cream Cheese Frosting:
6-ounces cream cheese
3 cups confectioners' sugar
6 tablespoons butter softened
1 teaspoon vanilla
Frost cooled cake and sprinkle with ½ cup nuts.

ANSWER — Pamela Hoy wanted to know where to find hickory salt for sausage making. Thanks to Mrs. A. Martin for writing that she purchased hickory smoke salt from Isaac and Elva Martin, 1178 Lebanon Rd., Manheim, PA 17545. Phone (717) 665-5013.

ANSWER — Tami Balzanna, Fawn Grove, wanted to know how to keep the shell from sticking to hardboiled eggs when trying to shell them. Thanks to D. Newswanger, Carlisle, for writing that she has had success with the following method: Bring water to a boil, immerse eggs in the water and continue boiling until hard boiled.

Thanks to Joyce Stuff, Mercersburg, who writes that eggs must be at least one week old. Keep them at a cool temperature (not refrigerated), and pour warm water over the eggs prior to cooking. After cooking, cool by running cold water over the eggs, drain, and cover slightly with cold water. Let eggs cool. Crack eggs around the "belly" until crumbly. Pick the shell open with a fingernail, and start peeling while dipping the egg frequently into the water to keep egg moist. Do not worry if the eggs aren't perfect, just make sure they taste good.

Hardboiled Eggs

Place cold eggs in a single layer in a pan just big enough to hold them. Add cold water to cover by one inch. Cover pan and bring to a boil over high heat. Remove from heat and let stand 17 minutes for medium eggs or 20 minutes for large ones. Pour off water and rinse under cold water.

Here's another method from Toni Kellers, Bucks County. She writes that you must use "old" supermarket eggs because fresh eggs can't be peeled after boiling. Refrigerate the eggs for two weeks after purchasing before hard boiling.

ANSWER — Pollyanna Eby, Belleville, wanted recipes and instructions for making ice cream cakes such as that sold by Dairy Queen and Carvel. Thanks to D. Newswanger, Carlisle, for sending the following instructions for an ice cream cake that her family thinks is delicious.

Ice Cream Cake

Prepare and bake one package of brownie mix in 9x13-inch pan according to directions on box. Cool cake. Using ½ gallon vanilla ice cream, make a thick layer of ice cream on top of brownies. Sprinkle 1 cup crushed Oreo cookies on top of ice cream. Drizzle chocolate syrup over cookies. Top with whipped topping of your favorite frosting. Garnish with a few cookie crumbs or decorate with frosting. Store in freezer. Allow to thaw slightly before serving.

ANSWER — Cindy Smith, Tyrone, wanted recipe for a cookie that tastes like the Little Debbie oatmeal cookies with filling.

Little Debbie's Chewy Oatmeal Cookies

3 cups flour
1½ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons vanilla
4½ cups brown sugar
3 cups oatmeal
1¼ teaspoon baking soda
3 teaspoons nutmeg
2¼ cups margarine
6 eggs
3 cups raisins or chocolate chips (optional)

Mix together dry ingredients in a bowl, add margarine and eggs. Stir until moist. Add vanilla, mix well, then add raisins or chocolate chips (optional). Place by spoonful on cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 10-12 minutes. Do not over bake. Makes 4-5 dozen. Use whoopie pie icing for filling recipe.

ANSWER — Melba Sheffer, Glen Rock, misplaced her sour dough starter recipe and has been lost without it. Thanks to Fern Schlegel, Dalmatia, for coming to her rescue with the following recipe.

Amish Friendship Starter Dough

1-ounce warm water
1 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup flour
1 cup milk, room temperature

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Add all ingredients in a bowl. Cover with plastic wrap and let stand in warm place for two days to ferment. Mixture will become bubbly and have a sour smell. After second day, start your bread recipe using this starter.

ANSWER — A steady reader is looking for an onion soup recipe. Thanks to Shirley Orfanella, Quarryville, for this recipe.

Best Onion Soup

6 large white onions, thinly sliced
¼ cup butter
1 teaspoon sugar—twice
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
6 cups good beef stock
Toasted French bread
Grated Gruyere cheese

Melt butter and saute onions until translucent. Add 1 teaspoon sugar and cook over low heat. Stir in mustard and add second spoon of sugar. Can add ¼ cup Cognac if desired. Add stock and cook to a boil. Stir often. Lower heat and simmer one hour. Ladle into bowls and top with toast and cheese. Broil until lightly browned — watch closely.

ANSWER — Ralph Nissly, Lancaster, wanted a recipe to can pumpkin to make pies. Thanks to Shirley Orfanella, Quarryville, who send a recipe but also the comment: "Almost easier and cheaper to buy (already canned pumpkin).

Canned Pumpkin

Cut two washed pumpkins into large pieces. Discard seeds or keep separate. Steam or bake pumpkin until tender. Scoop out pulp. Put through food mill. Add boiling water to thin slightly. Pour hot into jars, leave one-inch headspace. Add 1 teaspoon salt to each quart. Process pints about 1 hour and quarts for 1 hour and 20 minutes at 10 pounds pressure.

Getting To Root Of Yam

COLUMBUS, Ohio — What is the official difference between a yam and a sweet potato?

That depends. Are you talking about "true" yams, or are you talking about what people across the United States call yams?

First, let's focus on true yams. These are very different from sweet potatoes, and you don't find them commonly in this country. They come from a different botanical family, from the genus Dioscorea, or "yam" family (surprisingly enough).

They have rough, scaly skin and are starchier than sweet potatoes. They have a reddish-colored flesh. True yams grow in tropical and subtropical climates, and aren't grown commercially in the United States.

Sweet potatoes are known by the scientific name Ipomoea batatas and are a member of the morning glory family. They are sweeter and moister than true yams. More than likely, you've officially got sweet potatoes on your Thanksgiving dinner table.

However, there are different kinds of sweet potatoes, and the most common are called — you guessed it — yams. And unlike true yams, these yams are sweeter and moister than other sweet potatoes. Their flesh is a deeper orange and, as you might guess, they have more beta carotene. Other sweet potatoes, the Jersey type, have pale yellow or light brown flesh.

Ironically, neither true yams nor sweet potatoes are closely related to white potatoes, which come from the Solanum family, same as the eggplant and tomato.

True yams and sweet potatoes are really enlarged roots. White potatoes, on the other hand, are special types of underground stems, similar to the above-ground stems we see.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Standard Nutrient Database, a baked, medium-sized orange-fleshed sweet potato (a "yam," about 5 inches long) has about 120 calories, 3.5 grams of fiber, 400 milligrams of potassium, 25,000 International Units of vitamin A as beta carotene.

Adding a tablespoon of both butter and brown sugar adds about 150 calories and 12 grams of fat. Or, one 2.5-inch by 2-inch portion of home-prepared candied sweet potatoes contains about 600 calories and 3.5 grams of fat — of course, your family recipe may vary.

Try Using Barley Straw To Control Algae In Backyard Ponds

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The mother of all problems in ponds is excessive algae growth, according to a water resources specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, who recommends owners try a nontoxic method to control the choking green growth.

Backyard and ornamental ponds have become common in the last decade or so as more and more property owners add bodies of water to their landscaping. Pond sizes range from bathtub-sized containers to impoundments covering acres, but they all can suffer from the same malady — algae growth that can cover everything submerged with a thick green mat of goo.

"Traditional mechanical and chemical control methods are not always efficient or economical," says extension associate Bryan Swistock. "In recent years, the use of barley straw has become more common as an alternative method for controlling excessive algae growth.

This method has been extensively studied by scientists in Great Britain and has recently become widely known in the United States. When applied at the proper time and rate, barley straw is a very successful algae control technique in Pennsylvania ponds, according to Swistock.

"Barley straw does not kill existing algae but it inhibits new growth," he explains. "The exact mechanism is poorly understood, but it seems that barley straw, when exposed to sunlight and oxygen, produces a chemical that inhibits algae growth. Barley straw does not reduce the growth of other aquatic plants."

Barley straw is most effective when applied early in the year prior to the appearance of algae (fall through early spring). When applied to cold water (less than 50F), it may take six to eight weeks for the straw to begin producing the active chemicals that inhibit algae growth. If the straw is applied to warmer water (above 70F), it may become effective in as little as one to two weeks. In any case, barley straw remains effective for approximately six months after application.

"The most common application is two to three bales per surface acre of pond. The depth of water in the pond is not important," Swistock says. "In ponds that are frequently muddy or those that have a history of heavy algae growth, two or three times this recommended dose may be required for the initial treatment. However, overdosing the pond with barley straw may cause fish kills because straw deoxygenates the water as it decays. This is especially a problem if the pond is overdosed with straw during a prolonged warm spell."

The straw is most effective when applied loosely in cages or netting. It is best to anchor the straw packages to the bottom and provide a float to keep the straw near the surface of the pond where sunlight and oxygen are more prevalent. Apply the straw at several locations around the pond, especially near the water source if a spring or stream feeds the pond. In small garden ponds, small nets or nylon stockings can be used to hold the small amounts of straw needed.

"Finding a local supplier of barley straw sometimes can be difficult," says Swistock. "You might consult with private and government agencies that work with local farmers, like farm supply companies, Cooperative Extension offices and Conservation District offices, to determine if barley straw is available locally. In addition, there are several suppliers available on-line (just type "barley straw" in your favorite search engine)."

Nominations Sought For Mid-Atlantic Innovation And Leadership Award

PHILADELPHIA — The Mid-Atlantic Food and Farm Coalition seeks nominations for its Innovation and Leadership Award. This annual award recognizes the contributions of an exemplary individual, organization or business that has significantly improved the food and farming system in the Mid-Atlantic region.

Acknowledging pioneering work, innovation, and leadership, the award will be presented at the fourth annual Future of Our Food and Farms Summit on Dec. 5 and 6, at the Wyndham Wilmington Hotel, Wilmington, Del.

Nominees should be from Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania or the District of Columbia, and have made a significant contribution to the region's food system.

To nominate someone, contact Meredith Stone at The Food Trust at (215) 568-0830, Ext. 10 or contact@thefoodtrust.org. The Mid-Atlantic Innovation and Leadership Award nomination form is also available on the Summit Website at www.foodfarm.org.

Streams and Lakes — Great Gift!

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Why every angler and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into...there's a sure way to up your odds...simply try new fishing waters. Now, with this map you can find hidden streams and lakes.

Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio and Maryland/Delaware are loaded with great fishing holes...many of them overlooked. Thousands of miles of streams, rivers and lakes are now easy-to-locate on one map.

The 3-foot-by-5-foot Pennsylvania map shows 45,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3 1/2-foot-by-4 1/2-foot New York map shows 65,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-4-foot New England map shows 36,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2 1/2-foot-by-3-foot New Jersey map shows 8,300 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-3-foot Ohio Map shows 29,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2-foot-by-3 1/2-foot Maryland/Delaware map shows 12,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

Professor Higbee's® Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind.

Homeschoolers Want Others To Join Them For Upcoming Spelling Bee

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Spelling — some students love it, others hate it.

No matter what their stance, many students are preparing for upcoming competition that can lead to national recognition.

The winners of the Lancaster County Spelling Bee will qualify for the Lancaster Intelligencer Journal Champion Spelling Bee. That winner will qualify for the Scripps Howard National Spelling Bee in Washington D.C., during the week of May 22-June 2, 2003.

Students can participate through their schools. Homeschoolers must have a group of 25 to be eligible to participate. The deadline for registration is Dec. 1, for the annual Lancaster County Home Schoolers' Spelling Bee scheduled for Monday, Feb. 3, at Westminster Presbyterian Church, 2151 Oregon Pike, Lancaster.

Some students are a bit skeptical of participating in the event, but realize the benefits of participation.

"I feel like I will be embarrassed because the audience will be watching, but I'm doing it," said Matthew Woodcraft, 11l.

His parents Bradley and Elaine Woodcraft, Ephrata, and many other parents believe participation is a valuable experience.

Homeschoolers preparing for upcoming spelling bee, from left, are Nathaniel Woodcraft, 9; Virgina Manness, 11; Matthew Woodcraft, 11; and Titus Jones, 13. More homeschoolers are needed in order to qualify for the competition. Registration deadline is Dec. 1.

The paideia has 3,700 words grouped into 27 categories and three levels: beginning, intermediate, and advanced.

You could say the paideia makes kids smarter. Not only do they learn how to spell words, but they learn how to use the words in coversation, and recognize them when reading books.

Of course, standing in front of an audience helps prepare students for the transition in the working world where speaking before an audience is often required.

Titus Jones, 13, has participated in the annual event before. He knows what it is like to know how to spell a word, but have his mind go blank when standing in front of an audience.

Nevertheless Titus is going to try again. His sister took second place in the regional competition two years ago.

Virginia Maness, 11, daughter of Paula and Tim Maness, Rothsville, said that spelling is an easy subject for her but she doesn't really like it. She, too, plans to participate. She believes it is important to learn to be a good speller.

More than 230 newspapers around the world participate in the E.W. Scripps Company Spelling Bee.

It is open to students attending public, private, parochial, charter, and home schools. Participants must have reached their 16th birthday on or before the date of the national finals and must not have passed beyond eighth grade on or before Feb. 1, 20003. A comprehensive set of requirements may be found in the Suggested Rules for Local Spelling Bees at the Website www.spellingbee.com.

Most homeschoolers plan to practice independently by using words from the paideia.

While studying, students will often write down a word that their mother or other instructor pronounces. But on the day of competition, all spelling is done orally. Students will not be able to write out the word and decide whether or not it looks correct.

The word will be pronouced. The students may ask to have the word repeated or for the pronouncer to use the word in a sentence or for a definition.

This method is a precaution against misinterpreting the word. Titus said that he lost one time because he thought the pronouncer was saying a word that sounded similiar to the one actually spoken.

The annual event began in 1925. Nine students participated in the first national finals. This year, more than 10 million students at the local level and more than 240 national finalists will participate.

To register for the Lancaster County Home Schoolers Spelling Bee, send your child's name, grade, parents' names, address, and phone number with $2 for each child to Elaine Woodcraft, 174 Parkview Heights Rd., Ephrata, PA 17522. Checks can be made payable to Woodcraft, who will forward details. For more information, call Woodcraft at (717) 738-9735.

Jacob Labonte, Kennett Square, is open-mouthed with wonder as he gazes at large metal moths on display in the new Transition Exhibit at Longwood Gardens. The moths are actually models of insect-themed shutter handles that will be part of Longwood's future indoor Children's Garden.

The Transition Exhibit underscores the strong tradition of change throughout Longwood's history by highlighting major past, present, and future projects to renew the Gardens. The Exhibit uses flow charts and photographs to give an overview of planning at Longwood and the inter-relationships between the Garden's research, plant production, and horticultural display divisions. Isometric drawings, conceptual illustrations, and models explain four future projects: the construction of a new indoor Children's Garden, the renovation of the East Conservatory, the construction of a new outdoor Winter Garden, and the renovation of the Ballroom Complex and historic 10,010-pipe Aeolian organ.

The Transition Exhibit is open during Conservatory hours, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. daily. For more information, call (610) 388-1000 or visit online at www.longwoodgardens.org.

Dear Twig: Do Asian lady beetles bite? My friend says they do. What do you know?
Multicolored Asian lady beetles, those non-native ladybugs that swarm into homes in fall, do, in fact, bite, although not too often.
That's what an Ohio State scientist named Joe Kovach tells me, based on his research and his own experience
Joe is studying the pesky orange bugs so he can figure out ways to keep them out of your house — ideally, by using few or no pesticides He surveyed people who had lots of ladybugs in their house, and 40 percent of those people — four out of every 10 — reported having been bitten
Fortunately, multicolored Asian lady beetles don't have stingers They bite with their tiny, sharp mandibles (mouth parts) Joe was bitten while in a swarm in southern Ohio He says it felt like a cat scratch or someone dragging a pin on his arm
Ouch
Joe and other scientists aren't sure why Asian ladybugs bite They might be trying to get moisture — sweat They might be grazing on microbes on your skin (Yuck) Or it might be that they think you're an aphid a really big aphid who probably isn't even excreting any honeydew Go figure

Congressional Farmer Cooperative Caucus Created

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC) has applauded the creation of a new, bipartisan and bicameral Congressional Farmer Cooperative Caucus.

The caucus will provide a forum for Members of Congress interested in working together in support of public policy and programs to protect and enhance the ability of farmers to join together in cooperative self-help efforts to improve their economic well being.

The co-chairs of the caucus are Representative Sam Graves (R-Mo) and Representative Earl Pomeroy (D-N.D.) in the House and Senator Blanche Lambert Lincoln (D-Ark.) and Senator Larry Craig (R-Idaho) in the Senate.

"I commend the co-chairs for their leadership in establishing a forum to promote a greater awareness and understanding of the vital role that farmer cooperative businesses play in American agriculture and the need for public policy to be supportive," said John E. Gherty, chairman of NCFC and president and CEO of Land O'Lakes, Inc., a national food and agricultural cooperative based in Arden Hills, Minn.

"The caucus co-chairs represent states and congressional districts with diverse agricultural interests, yet each is closely acquainted with the benefits of farmer cooperatives to farmers," continued David Graves, president and CEO of NCFA (no relation to Congressman Graves). "Helping farmers to help themselves is crucial to any long-term solution to the challenges facing American agriculture."

There are more than 3,000 farmer cooperatives across the United States whose farmer members represent a majority of our nation's nearly two million individual farmers. Across the country, they provide over 300,000 full- and part-time jobs in rural communities with a payroll in excess of $8 billion.

During the convention of the Society of the Lancaster County Farm Women, the officers join motivational speaker Stan Deen, center, who challenged members to live life to its fullest. With him, from left, are Gladys Espendshade, president; Phyllis Newcomber, vice president; Mabel Hershey, secretary, and Eileen Burkhart, treasurer.

Farm Society Perseveres 'For Happiness'

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

This past year, the county's 26 individual societies with 495 members gave more than $11,730 to charities. At the convention they presented more than $2,000 to SafeKids.

Not all the societies monthly meetings focused on raising money for charities. They also had sessions on flower arranging, candy making, how to eat crabs, how to hook rugs, and many special speakers. Members also entertained guests at retirement villages, helped in many community events, and also took car and bus trips to local historical places and other points of interest.

Of members numerous activities, the secretary said, "Mostly we are perpetuating our motto 'For Happiness" and reinforcing our purpose."

The state Farm Women Society was founded in 1914 for the purpose of contributing to the power and influence of the farm home, to the community activity of farm women, and to develop leadership and promote better living and working conditions in farm homes.

Gladys Espenshade hands a check to a representative for SafeKids. The Society raised more than $2,000 to promote farm safety programs.

When contemplating whether or not to purchase the Wampler business, Miller said that he was most wary of the marketing required.

"I don't consider myself a sales person or agressive," he said.

But Miller has found local business customers easy to talk with and enjoys the marketing end.

Transporting the hives with a trailer and van required help, and even delivering the processed honey is not a task Kelly can handle.

Honey isn't easy to clean up, especially if there are accidents.

Kelly recalled a disaster that happened on the couple's anniversary. The couple was planning to celebrate by going out to eat. But about an hour before leaving, she stepped into the kitchen pantry and discovered 50 pounds of honey had drained out. The honey was several inches thick on the floor and had seeped into the basement. It took hours to clean up, scraping it into a bucket and using lots of hot water to wash away the stickiness. The floor boards needed to be replaced.

Tim and Kelly Miller label honey under the label Wampler's Honey and The Honeybee Shoppe. They specialize in alfalfa, buckwheat, clover, orange blossom, tupelo, and wildflower flavors.

Needless to say, the anniversary dinner had to be postponed.

"Looking back, it is kind of funny, but it wasn't at the time," Kelly said.

Miller said, " 'Some days I love working with the bees and think this is where I want to be (full time). Other times the bees are nasty, and I ask myself, " 'Why am I doing this?"

One of those days happened this summer when he tried to retrieve a bee swarm on his property that he estimates hovered in a branch at least 50 feet above the ground. He decided not to suit up in beekeeper's protective garb because he surmised that he could easily attain the swarm. Otherwise the mesh could become entangled in the branches and it is very hot inside the garb during high temperatures.

But some of the bees crawled beneath his watch, and when they felt pinched, they stung him. After being stung 30 times, Miller retreated to the ground, suited up, and retrieved the swarm.

In retrospect, Miller said of his decision not to wear protective clothing, "That was dumb."

As a carpenter, I'm not afraid of heights," Miller said. "I've removed them from homes, buildings, and trees for other people."

Miller said in contemplating the decision to expand the bee business, he thought of his four children.

"I have a son and three daughters. What are the chances that my daughters can join my carpentry business?" Miller asked. "With bees, they can join in that."

All the children help with some aspects of the business — mostly with bottling. The couple's six-year-old daughter shows the most affinity to work ing with bees.

"She's always there right up next to her dad," Kelly said of extracting the honey.

The children also help with bottling and labeling the honey and the beeswax products.

Kelly said that the handcream she developed contains 25 percent beeswax, which makes a very rich embollient. She knows of no commercial handcream that contains that much. Her customers include doctors and nurses who buy it for its healing qualities. Some call it 'Kelly's Miracle Cream,'" Kelly said. Those who have cracked skin on their hands say if they use the handcream, the cracks heal overnight. She also sells it to other beekeepers and to customers who hear about it word of mouth.

Kelly likes to experiment by adding color to candles. Candles made from pure beeswax are known to burn slower and cleaner, so her husband frowns on her dumping stuff into what he considers a perfect product." 'He's a purist and I'm creative," Kelly said.

At this point, the Millers only place the bee hives locally and market locally. Miller is intrigued by the possibility of moving his hives to warmer states during the winter. Migratory beekeepers often travel to Florida and Western states during winter weather. Regulatory inspections when crossing state lines are mandated.

Because they have school-age children, Kelly doesn't see migratory beekeeping as a possibility. She said that she moved 20 times and attended 28 schools as a child, so staying in one place is important to her.

Then, again, she changed her mind before — from being skeptical of beekeeping to becoming a full-fledged promoter of honey and its products.

Six-year-old Julia Miller is fast preparing to become the next generation of beekeepers in the Miller family.

Here is a basket filled with some of the items Kelly makes from honey and beeswax to sell in her Honeybee Shoppe.

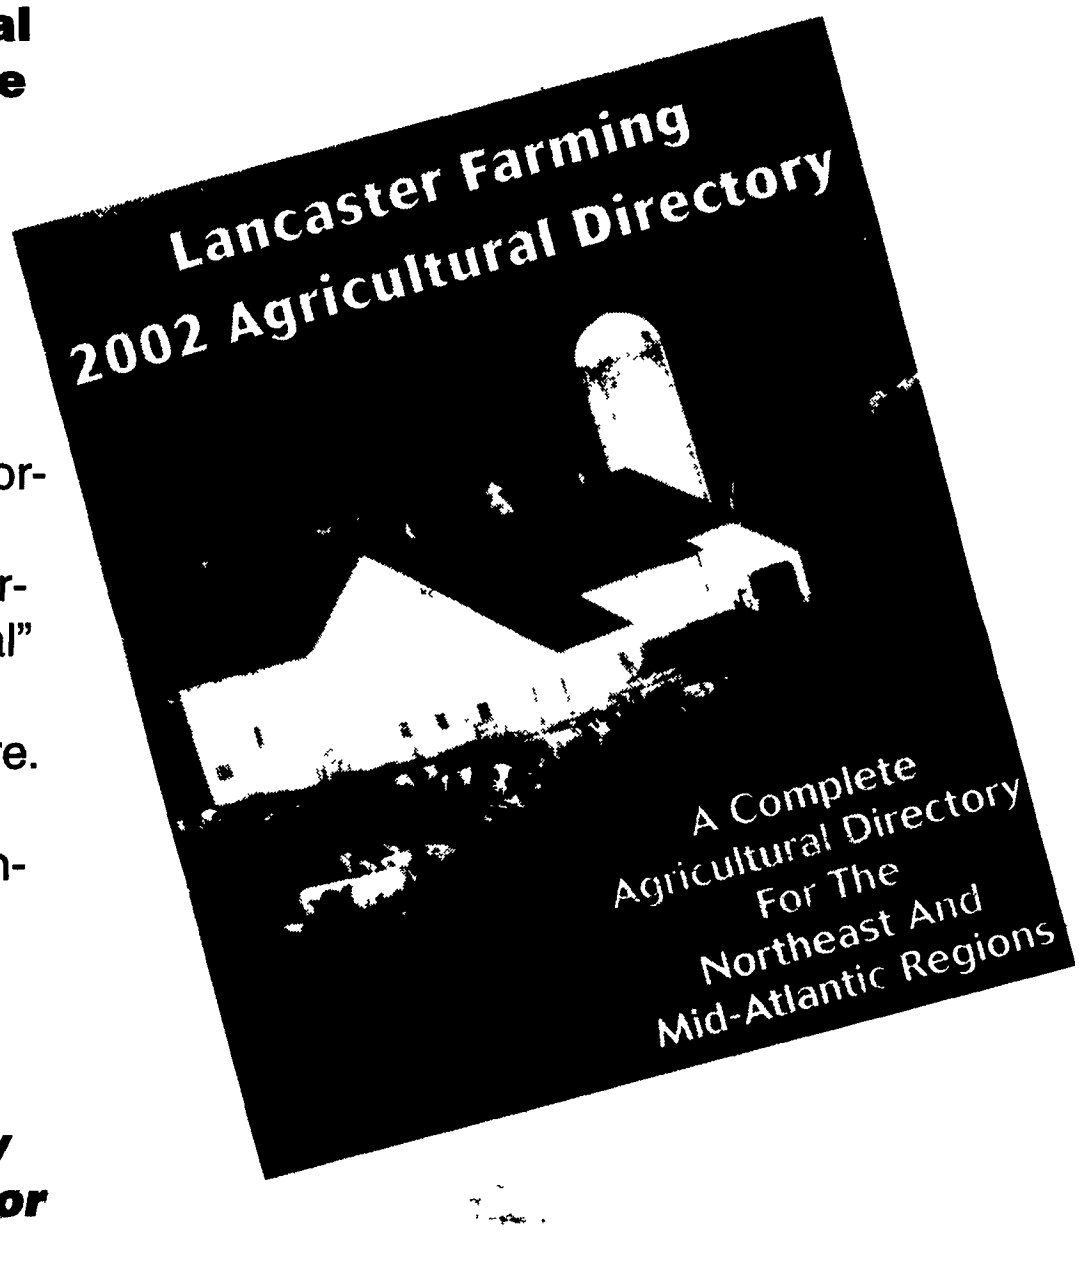
LANCASTER FARMING'S 2003 AG DIRECTORY: YOUR LINK TO DECISION-MAKERS IN THE NORTHEAST AND MID-ATLANTIC

This year marks the third annual Lancaster Farming Ag Directory, your link to the decision-makers of the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic.

For 2003, we plan a new portion of the book: "Essential Contacts." It's a page that the new or beginning farmer can turn to for quick information on a variety of topics, including the "basics" of farming.



Last year, the book totalled 152 pages, and was jam-packed with information from an eight-state region, which includes Pennsylvania and surrounding states. Again, the "essential" reference book will include more for today's decision-makers in agriculture. Lancaster Farming plans to include more names, addresses, phone numbers, and Web addresses than ever before.

Make the 2003 Lancaster Farming Agriculture Directory your decision-maker source for the more than $50 billion regional ag industry.

Plan Now To Be Represented In This Directory!

You ask you answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to LGOOD.EPH@LNPNEWS.COM

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it. However, if your question requires someone to mail items to you, you must include your address or phone number for publishing.

QUESTION — Dolores Caverly, Shavertown, has a Windsor chair with a brass plate that reads: The Derby Chair made by P. Derby and Co. Inc., Gardner, Mass. She wants to know if any information is available on this chair.

QUESTION — Amanda Fisher, Kinzer, wants to knon how to get an instruction book for a 16-quart Peerless pressure canner.

QUESTION — David Lounsbury, Chester Springs, wants to know where to have old milk cans replated. What was the original coating? Was it food-grade tin plating or something else?

ANSWER — For the reader who had wool to sell, Michelle Good writes that she braids wool rugs and would be willing to make an offer. Call her at (570) 837-0475.

ANSWER — Mrs. Zimmerman, Manheim, wanted to know where the movements for a battery-operated clock can be found in a store or catalog. She needs a new one for a Seth Thomas wall clock. Thanks to Pastor Philip Smith for recommending Andy H. Weaver, 16891 Farmington Rd., W. Farmington, Ohio 44491 or call 1-800-882-8799 and request a free catalog. Different movements and clock faces are available.

Mary Ann Reich recommends requesting a catalog from Cherry Tree Toys, Inc., P.O. Box 369, Belmont, Ohio 43718. Or call 1-800-848-4363.

ANSWER — E. Martin, New Holland, wanted to know where a reasonably priced heart-shaped waffle iron can be purchased. Mary Ann Reich writes that she received one from her husband a few years ago. It is a Swift brand model TSK-24H, which is not expensive and she thinks is sold at Cole's or Wal-Mart.

ANSWER — Dan Yonosh, Slatington, wanted to know if someone is qualified to repair an old Elmo Regular 8mm-Super 8mm dual movie projector, model FP-A, or if someone has a Super 8mm movie projector, any brand, in good condition to sell. Thanks to Tom Hall, Boyertown, for providing instructions on how to check for various projector malfunctions. His experience and knowledge solved Dan's problem. Tom also has regular 8mm and super 8mm projectors for sale. Call (610) 367-7210.

N.Y. Beef Industry Teaches Consumers How To BEEFlexible

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Each year the New York State Fair arrives amidst a whirlwind of activity, and this year was no different.

With a few changes in place, the "Meals in Minutes" booth became the "BEEFlexible Everyday Meal Solutions" center. A new sign over the P&C meatcase, new artwork on the walls, and a huge banner from Nebraska reading, "Beef — America's Choice" completed the look.

The New York Beef Industry Council (NYBIC) was fortunate to again have volunteers from the American National CattleWomen, National Beef Ambassador program, Nebraska Cattlemen, and New York State to help with the sampling efforts. During the course of the fair the NYBIC served 39,892 samples; 8,235 samples were served on Beef Day alone. Additionally, the American National CattleWomen conducted 15 cooking demonstrations with two recipes each session.

Beef Day is an eagerly anticipated event, as local media and beef producers join together to promote the benefits of beef. This year, Beef Day began with NYBIC's appearance on Syracuse's WIXT Daybreak Show. The NYBIC brought in six different steaks ranging from the Porterhouse to the Top Blade and educated consumers about steaks in a variety of price ranges. At the end of the segment, viewers were shown the cut chart found in the "Confident Cooking" brochure and were told to come to the State Fair and visit the NYBIC's booth to obtain a free copy.

Penn's Agri-Women Plan Regional Meeting

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Members of Penn's Agri-Women met for their annual meeting, Oct. 24 for lunch and business meeting. Jean Beck, president, led the business meeting which included election of officers, re-elected to serve for two years were Jean Beck, Hamburg, president; Carol Ann Gregg, Grove City, vice president; Naomi Spahr, Lititz; secretary, and Gail McPherson, New Park, treasurer.

Members of Penn's Agri-Women (PAW) planned their part of the regional meeting of the Sigma Alpha Sororities of the northeastern states that will be conducted in State College March 21-23. The Epsilon Chapter of Sigma Alpha of Penn State University are hosting the meeting.

Both Penn's Agri-Women and Sigma Alpha are affiliates of American Agri-Women, a coalition of agricultural organizations across the United States.

PAW's 2003 annual meeting will be Oct. 23, 2003 at the Dauphin County Agricultural Center beginning at 11 a.m. with a potluck luncheon.

Honey Of A Collection Showcases Beekeeping Treasures

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

ROHRERSTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — An extensive collection of honey equipment and beekeeping supplies and books is displayed at Dutch Gold Honey, 2220 Dutch Gold Drive, Lancaster.

Much of the collection showcases pieces gathered by John Moore, a former Ephrata schoolteacher whose family, after Moore's death, donated the pieces to the Lancaster County Honey Producers.

Other pieces are from Ralph and Louella Gamber who founded Dutch Gold Honey. The Gambers started with three hives and their kitchen table, and now ship honey worldwide.

Beekeeping history roots go back centuries. According to Loren Sadler, Stevens, the Egyptians were the world's first practical beekeepers dating back to about 2,500 B.C. The Egyptians' methods eventually spread throughout Europe and then to the new world.

As Sadler handles pieces, some dating back to the 1700s, he recounts a bit of bee history.

Bees, he said, weren't always in the United States. In 1620, European settlers brought bees with them.

"White man's flies" is the name American Indians gave the Apis Mellifera bees, which have multiplied and spread across the states.

Kelly Miller examines an early 1900s extractor printed with the words: Novice's Honey Extractor, Amos I. Root, Ohio.

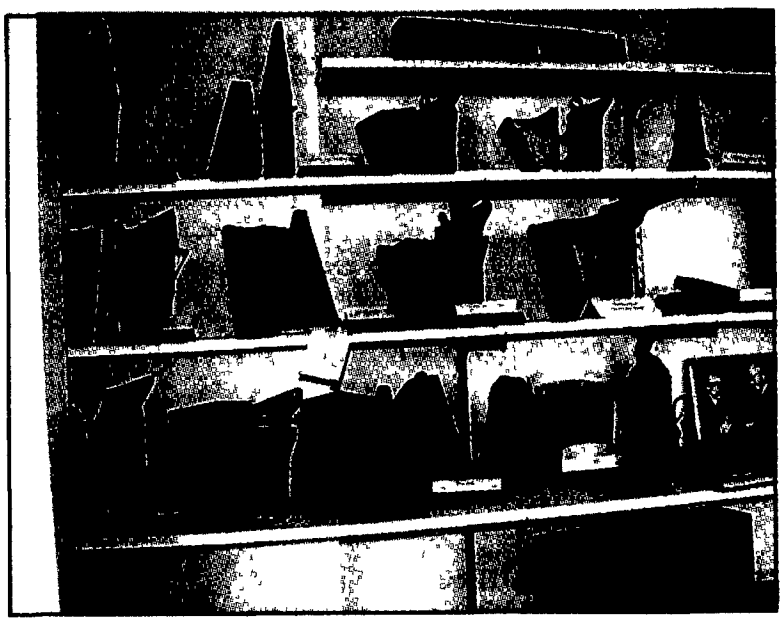
Beekeeping was something a farmer could do at relatively low cost to provide for his own family. Honey and maple sugar were the only sources of sweetness available to settlers. It was considered a wonderful occasion to find a bee tree in the wild. These produced about 25 pounds of honey compared with the average 80 pounds produced by today's modern hives.

Homemade bee gums were often formed in hollowed logs of the gum tree. At the end of the season, a rag was soaked in sulfur and placed into the hive. This method enabled the early settlers to harvest the honey without fear of being stung. The drawback was that the sulfur odor killed the bees. Swarms of wild bees often replaced the lost bees, but eventually wild bees were endangered.

Bee keepers figured out other ways to collect the honey without killing the bees. Smokers, filled with dried grasses or pine needles, with bellows attached enabled beekeepers to puff smoke into the hives. The smoke pacified the bees and also covered the bee scent put out by bees that were on the alert.

Sadler said that beekeepers profited from three major inventions: the hive, extractor, and the foundation in which wax was pressed into a manmade comb to give bees a headstart in forming a colony and producing a more uniform product.

An 1857 beehive was patented in 1857 by L.L. Langstroth, but he never reaped profits for his invention, because industrious beekeepers could easily copy his invention.



In the 1800s and the early 1900s almost every rural family kept a hive of bees. But few of the hives and related beekeeping supplies have been preserved because many families burned the wooden frames and discarded items they no longer used.

Loren Sadler is a living historian who relishes in talking about the history of beekeeping.

In 1857, L.L. Langstroth from Philadelphia patented a beehive. He had determined that bees needed a ¼ to ⅓-inch space to efficiently make honey. Under that amount, bees filled the space with resin, and a larger space resulted in bees raising more bees. His wooden hive had movable frames with bee space just large enough to discourage bees from gluing the comb solidly to the wall or simply raise bee families.

Although the beehive design became the standard for beekeepers, Langstroth never reaped any profits from his invention. The problem was that beekeepers took one look at the patented hive and went home and made their own. The design was too easily copied.

The first extractor was invented in the 1850s.

Ledgers and rosters from the county's honey producers association chronicle the organization back to 1917.

Another big boost to the industry was the development of the observation hive, which enables people to view how bees work. Scientists often study hives in this way, but more importantly, children and adults can view the working colonies that are often on display at agriculture-related gatherings.

Bees are known for their honey, but they also produce propolis. Sadler said that propolis is an antibacterial substance. If a mouse or bug enters the hive, the bees sting it to death, but cannot remove the carcass. The bees cover the remains with propolis, which mummifies the mouse so that disease from the decaying mouse does not spread.

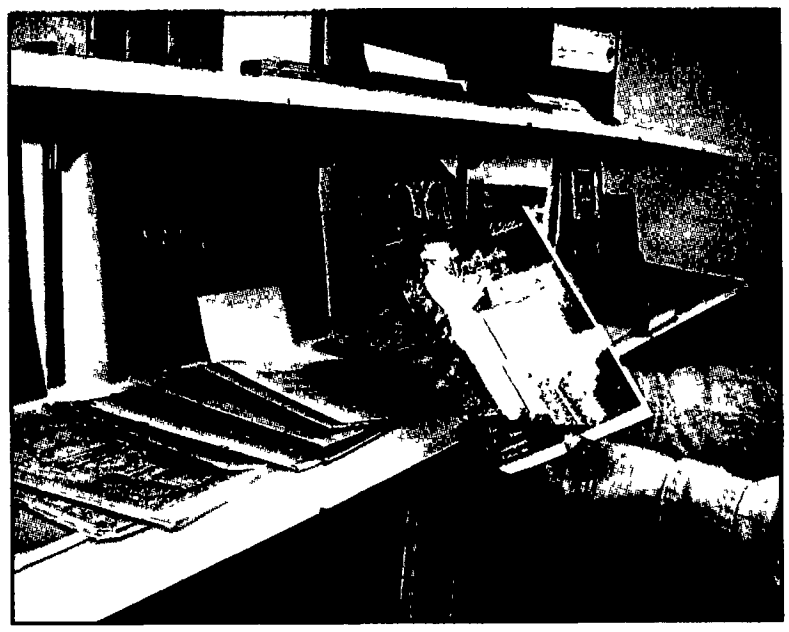
Propolis, Sadler said, is used by many people such as himself to fight pneumonia, earaches, and many other human diseases. Proplis is sold at health food stores in its raw form and as tablets.

Sadler believes that eating local honey can eliminate many allergies. He also uses honey therapy to treat burns, and administers bee stings to multiple sclerosis patients.

Throughout history, honey has been used as an effective antimicrobial agent to inhibit growth of certain bacterial, yeast, and molds.

Those interested in knowing more about beekeeping may call their county extension offices. The beekeeping display at Dutch Gold can be viewed without charge at anytime during the company's opening hours. Call for hours (717) 393-1716.

Sadler holds several smokers, one is an 1889 smoker invented by Bingham. Sadler said the same design is used today by beekeepers.



Booklets and catalogs dated back to 1859 show that little has changed in beekeeping methods.

Old Photos Clicking With Collectors

If you recently tossed old family photos, tintypes and Daguerreotypes maybe you threw away a bag of money!

I can remember a few years ago at house and garage sales when people snickered at the folks who zeroed in on photo albums priced at a couple of dollars.

Or, seeing a bag of old photos tagged a dollar. Forget that. These days any example of early photography and even 20th century photos can sell for several hundred dollars to the thousands. Of course not every photo is worth big bucks. But, you might be surprised at what is.

Collector interest began in the 1970s and 1980s when avant garde collectors rediscovered photos as a collectible art form. It was helped along when actor Dustin Hoffman paid a then record price of $750 for a carte de visite portrait of Abraham Lincoln attributed to Civil War photographer Mathew Brady, at a Sotheby's photography auction in 1978. That was the signal for dealers and collectors to begin hunting.

At that same auction, other photographs by lesser-known 19th century photographers went for as little as $75. Many potential buyers at that auction didn't bid...waiting to see what would happen. This would have been the time to start a collection if you didn't have much cash.

These days upscale auction houses such as Christie's and Sotheby's hold specialized photograph auctions.

Many of the photographers are considered 20th century masters. Prices are in the high thousands and up.

Another sign for collectors that something was happening was the acceptance in 1977 of photographic images by the National Portrait Gallery and the opening of their photograph department. It's curator began assembling fine examples from around the country that were put on display. This exhibit covered American portrait photography from the 1840s to the 1940s. This gave would-be collectors beginning and cutoff dates.

Soon, other museums and the Exchange National Bank of Chicago began purchasing photographs by important modern masters as well as pioneers. In 1981 Sotheby's held a record-breaking photography auction. Stands and prices for collectors were set...or so it seemed. Since then there have been ups and downs. These days there are uppers.

Antique Detective

CLUES: Daguerreotypes, tintypes and ambrotypes, usually photos of soldiers, still turn up at house and garage sales. Prices vary from $5 to $20. However, they are also offered at auctions, selling from $200 to $600. They are getting scarcer as collectors discover them.

Daguerreotypes, glass covered, silver images on copper plates, represent the first known photographic techniques developed in the 19th century by Louis Daguerre and Joseph Niepce, in France. Collectors look for large size and outdoor scenes. An example would be early known daguerreotypes of historical buildings, famous people, Civil War soldiers, especially black or Confederate. The more unusual the subject matter the more valuable the photo.

Carte de visite introduced, in America around 1859, photo prints in playing card size on cardboard, which brought about mass production and the photo album. Look for those that show historical subjects, technological developments as well as social documentation such as plantation life scenes.

Names are important for collectors, especially when it comes to 20th century photographers. Consider Alfred Stieglitz (1864-1946), one of the best known. In the mid-1970s his signed print "The Steerage" (showing immigrants aboard ship) sold for over $4,000.

To learn more, check your library or local antique dealers for photo societies and collector clubs in your area. Don't toss away old family photos that have no interest for you. To a collector they may represent collectible history.

Illustrated Lecture Examines Media Perceptions Of Amish

BIRD-IN-HAND (Lancaster Co.) — David Weaver-Zercher, associate professor of American religious history at Messiah College, Grantham, will present a slide-illustrated lecture on the media perceptions of the Amish.

The program, which is open to the public, is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Dec. 2 at Stumptown Mennonite Church, 2813 Stumptown Rd., Bird-in-Hand.

The lecture will discuss the various images of the Old Order Amish portrayed by various forms of media throughout the 20th century. Slide images will illustrate how the Amish have functioned in the imaginations of the non-Amish Americans.

Drawing on research from his recent book, "The Amish In The American Imagination," (John Hopkins University Press, 2001), Weaver-Zercher will use slides to illustrate the ways the Amish have been mediated and consumed by non-Amish Americans, including travel writers, tourists, entrepreneurs, and Mennonites.

Weaver-Zercher "resists the temptation" to interpret how the Amish see themselves.

He continually marvels at the ability of Americans "to take a marginal religious group, fill it with meaning, and make it personally useful," even when the meaning has little basis in fact.

The presentation's primary focus will be on the mid-20th century, more recent developments in the mediation of the Amish (for example, the "Amish drug bust" story) will also be explored.

Professor Weaver-Zercher teaches a variety of religion classes including Anabaptist Theology at Messiah College. He has studied the interaction between the Amish and other segments of American population for over a decade and has edited several other books.

Antiques Questions And Answers

I would like to know something about these beautifully carved wood plaques with paintings of peasant women in the center. They hang from hooks on a carved piece of wood. I thought they might be Russian. Any information you could give would be appreciated.

H.M.V. - New Kensington, PA

Your carved lacquer pieces depicting a celebration of the harvest are similar to those done by Russian artists. They are still being made. Your example appears to have been made from the 1960s to currently.

I would like the names of collectors of older dolls. I have an Armand Marseille and a "flirty eye" boy doll I would like to sell.

G.T. - Summerville, NJ

If you have an idea of your asking price, I would suggest you advertise in your local paper, or in one of the many antiques trade publications listed in library reference departs. Since your doll makers are well-known you can get an idea of their worth in any of the antiques price guides in libraries and book stores.

This photo of a roof tile in the form of a horse, is supposedly from the Ming Dynasty (16th-17th century), given to me by my late grandmother, an antiques dealer. I would like to know the value for selling purposes. I have sent pictures to different dealers but none responded.

S.B. - Anthony, FL

Surprisingly roof tiles from the Ming Dynasty do come to auctions. They have sold for $4,000-$6,000.

I have had this floral painted china vase for a long time. It is marked T & V Limoges France. The artist's signature is Ola Redin. It is 16 inches tall.

L.P. -Fruitland Park, FL

Hand-painting of porcelain was popular from the late 19th century to the 1920s. The artists used blanks from many manufacturers including Limoges. The value depends on the quality of the art work. Your handsome piece could sell for $200 or more in a shop.

Can you tell me the history and evaluate this plate (one of a pair)? One has the portrait of a king; the other a queen. The back says "Carlsbad, Austria."

D.A. - Staten Island, NY

Your portrait plates, made in the early 20th century, could sell in a shop for $350 a pair.

Can you give me the origin and value of this chair, bought at auction in the 1950s. Supposedly from an old hotel. A whole bedroom set comes with it.

P.A. - Natrona Hgts, PA

Your heavily carved, pierced wood frame chair is a copy of early "Dante," Italian Renaissance style, also known as X-form. This "Renaissance Revival style" 1870s in America. It was also popular in the early 1900s. Similar chairs have sold at auction for $2,000 or more.

Dairy Team To Lead Cow Workshops

MYERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) and CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — The Capital Region Dairy Team, along with faculty from Penn State's department of veterinary science, will be offering two Cow Sense-Transition Cow workshops during November.

On Nov. 14, the workshop will take place in Lebanon County at the Curwin Weaver Farm near Myerstown. This operation has recently moved into a new dairy center.

On Nov. 15, the workshop will be conducted in Cumberland County at Cumminsville Farm on Walnut Bottom Rd. near Carlisle.

We all know how critical it is to catch a cow during the early stages of a disease rather than after she is really sick. Because of this, the ability of dairy farm workers to quickly identify problem cows is a critical part of all dairy management systems.

Those people who can quickly spot problem cows are often said to have "cow sense." Regional extension staff and veterinary science faculty have teamed up to create a hands-on, intensive course in "cow sense." Veterinarians and nutritionists will teach participants how to really read a cow's distress signals.

Skills that participants learn in this course can be put to work immediately on the farm. Participants will also receive a packet of information that will serve as a handy reference and can be used to help teach others.

Workshops will start at 9:30 a.m. and the program will end at 3 p.m. Lunch is provided. The cost is $25 per person. This is a hands-on course and spaces are limited. You may mail registrations to: Penn State Cooperative Extension, 112 Pleasant Acres Rd., York, PA 17402-99041. Or telephone (717) 840-7408 to reserve your place.

❖ BUSINESS NEWS ❖

Live Internet Auction To Showcase $25 Million Land Inventory

PHILADELPHIA — A live Internet auction will be the first of its kind for an unprecedented $25 million dollar inventory of prime vacant commercial land sites in a four-state region.

The properties will be auctioned on behalf of the Wawa Company beginning Nov. 13, utilizing both traditional on-premises methods and a live Internet segment.

The portfolio of 20 properties, deemed to be excess land by Wawa's board of directors, are located in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Virginia and will be sold during a seven-day marathon live auction event, conducted by The Traiman Auction Company of Philadelphia.

"Beginning Wednesday, Nov. 13, the public will have a unique opportunity to bid on the excess vacant commercial land that surrounds many of Wawa's new and highly-recognizable prototype super convenience stores," said Douglas Clemens, principal of the Traiman Auction Company and host of both the on-premises and live Internet auction segments.

The Traiman Auction Company will introduce live on-line bidding for this real estate auction, utilizing both the traditional live auction method and the high-tech on-line live bidding method. Buyers can either bid from the convenience of their home or office or attend the auction in person.

Wawa, one of America's fastest growing private companies, employs 13,000 people at 500 locations in five states and has carved a niche for selecting some of this region's choice corner highway properties to retail their convenience centers for food and fuel.

"When Wawa purchases a corner property for a super store, the company often has to buy more land than is required," Clemens said. "Thus, these properties are that subdivided portion Wawa will not be needing."

"The live Internet auction segment will be especially beneficial to franchise companies from around the country, such as investors on the West Coast who will have an opportunity to bid on land sites from their office," Clemens said. They can log onto BidSpotter.com and participate in the auction.

Another new concept being introduced to the buying public via the Internet is that interested parties can download all of the important property due diligence information from the Traiman Website (www.traiman.com). "This feature is an asset to land property buyers as it will save them precious time running around to gather facts about the properties," Clemens said. "Most of the properties are zoned commercial and are ideal for many types of retail uses."

Conference Planned To Aid Farmers

PALMYRA (Lebanon Co.) — To inform farmers on use of technology to meet the many challenges they face, a Farming with Technology Conference will be conducted Monday, Nov. 19, at Weaver's banquet facility in Adamstown.

Coordinated by Marty Campfield of NSIA. Inc., the program will provide farmers and agribusinessmen and consultants with a showcase of many of the current software programs, machinery technology, and management skills that are available.

The conference will consist of four concurrent sessions of presentations running all day long, plus a special afternoon preconference session. Participants will be treated to a hot buffet lunch, a chance at valuable door prizes, and insights into new agricultural production and recordkeeping technology.

The computer training sessions include Farm and Field Mapping, GPS on the Go, Pocket PCs on the Move, From Feed to Field in the Dairy, Nutrient Management Issues, Surfing the Ag Web, Computerized Cash Flow, DTN Dairy the New Tool, MS Word and Excel, Ag Communications, Computerized Crop Insurance, and New Tech Toys.

Also, Pennsylvania Pesticide License points, Pennsylvania and Maryland Certified Nutrient Management Planner credits, and Certified Crop Advisor credits will be awarded to those attending qualifying sessions.

A farm producer's panel discussion is planned as the final event of the day, so that the attendees can have a chance to hear how local producers are using new technologies.

Call 1-800-270-0047 or visit www.nutrient-solutions.com for more information or to register.

SEMINAR I
10:00 AM Making the Most of Farm Forages
Presented by Dr. Charlie Sniffen - President of the Miner Institute in New York

Dr. Sniffen brings more than 40 years of experience in dairy science and nutrition studies. His affiliations with a score of dairy-oriented universities and industry programs from Maine to Michigan and Kentucky, attest to the esteem, which is rightly afforded him by his peers. If it has to do with cows, Dr Sniffen is the one to call. DON'T MISS HIS "KEY-NOTE" PRESENTATION!

SEMINAR II
11:00 AM Proper Nutrition + (TLC) = Improved Herd Health
Presented by Corwin Holtz P.A.S.

Corwin Holtz originally trained as a tech support nutritionist, Mr. Holtz assumed a position as farm manager on a "cutting-edge" 850 cow dairy operation near Homer, N.Y. Corwin Holtz brings a wealth of knowledge in the areas of dairy technology and nutrition. He now serves as a Director of Technical Support for CPG Nutrients.

LUNCH - 12:00 - 1:30 - Visit Vendors and Breakout Session

SEMINAR III
12:30 AM Manure Scoring - "The Proof is in the Patties"
Presented by Dr. Gabriella Varga

Dr. Varga is recognized as a Distinguished Professor of Animal Science at Penn State University. Her significant study and research in the area of dairy science is evident from the numerous papers which she has authored as well as the awards and honors which have been bestowed on her. Well-versed in many areas of nutrition, ration prep, and trouble-shooting, Dr. Varga will also be addressing herd health issues from the "discharge" end of the cow.

SEMINAR IV
1:30 PM Transition Cows - The Most Overlooked, Under-managed Group on Your Farm
Presented by Jeffrey D. Brose, D.V.M.

Dr Jeff Brose graduated from Kansas State University College of Veterinary Medicine in 1986. His private practice in Southeast Nebraska offered conventional veterinary services, production medicine, herd health and nutrition to dairy businesses in Nebraska and Kansas. In 1999, Dr Brose joined Monsanto Dairy Business as Technical Service Specialist assisting producers in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware. He uses his experience in private practice to help dairies maximize economic returns with practical, effective dairy cow management. Dr. Brose's interests include dairy facilities design, cow comfort, records analysis, and nutrition

Consider A New Kinze Bulk Fill Planter From Binkley & Hurst Bros. Today!

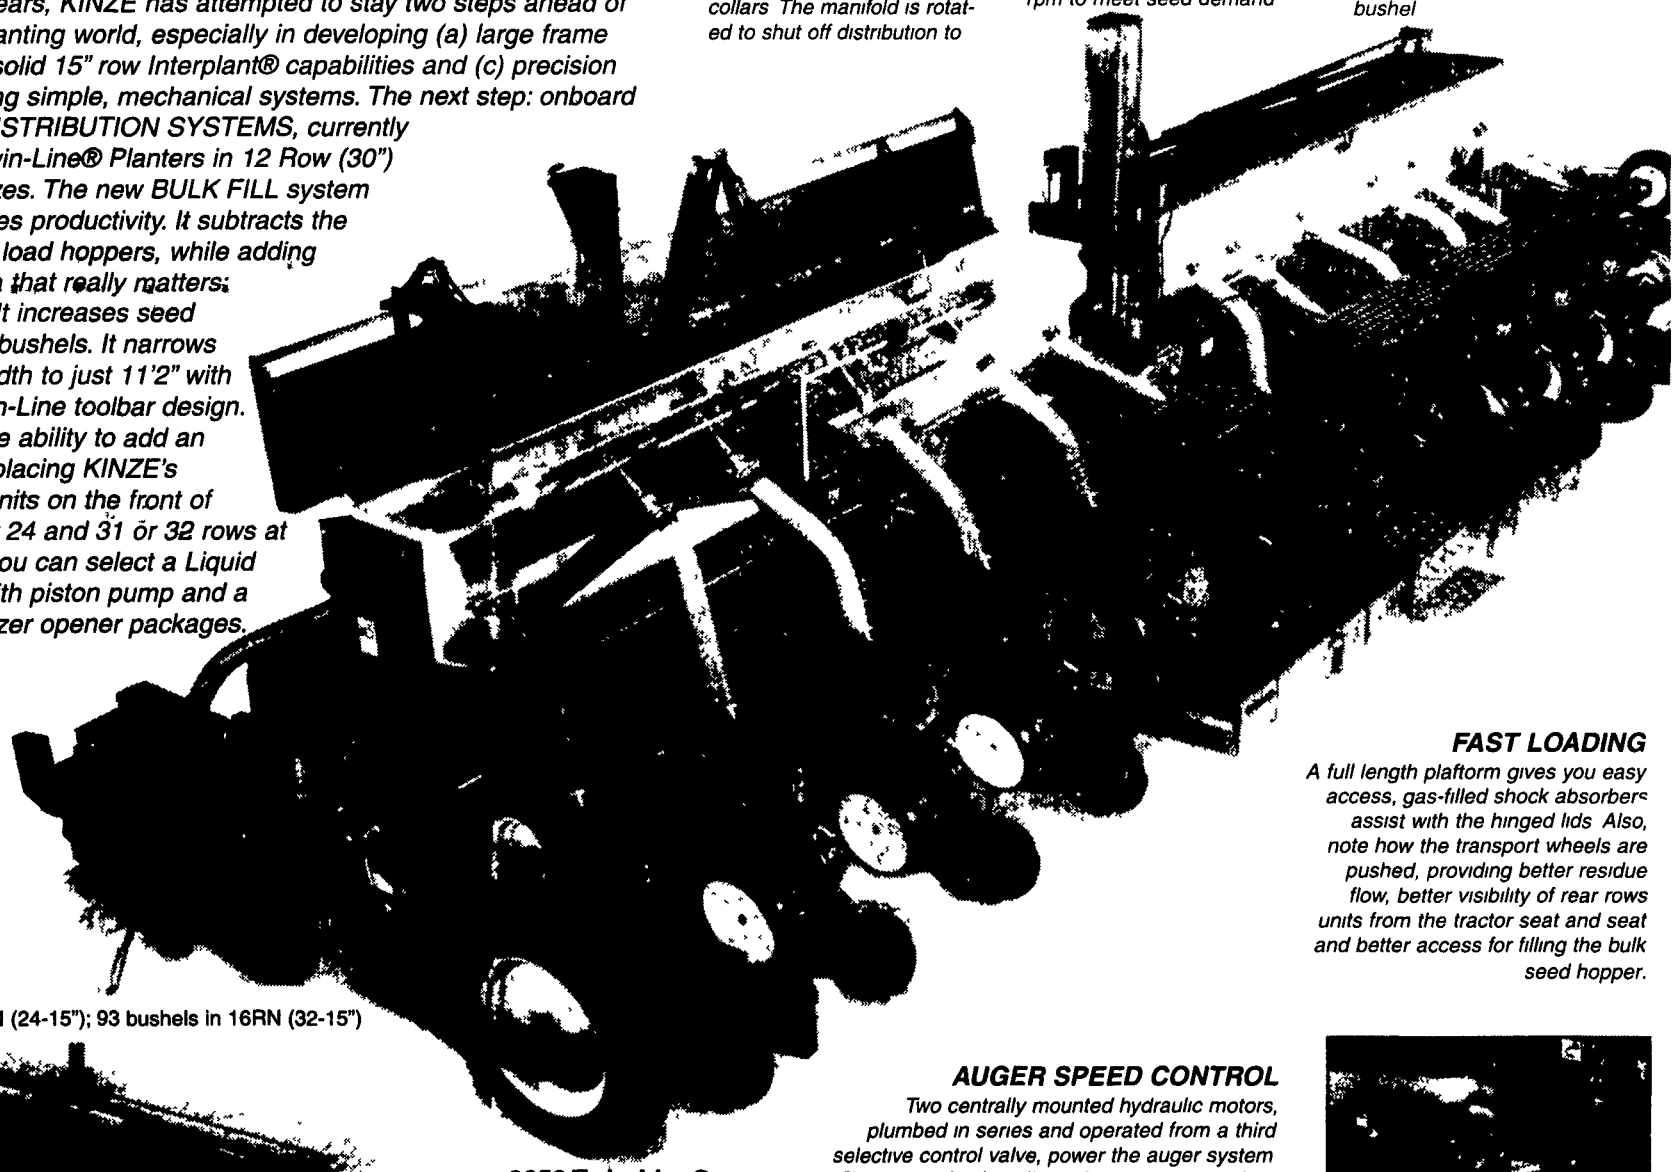
BULK FILL
SEED DISTRIBUTION

For the last twenty years, KINZE has attempted to stay two steps ahead of the the rest of the planting world, especially in developing (a) large frame folding planters, (b) solid 15" row Interplant® capabilities and (c) precision seed singulation using simple, mechanical systems. The next step: onboard BULK FILL SEED DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS, currently available on 3650 Twin-Line® Planters in 12 Row (30") and 16 Row (30") sizes. The new BULK FILL system substantially increases productivity. It subtracts the extra time it takes to load hoppers, while adding more time to an area that really matters: in-the-field planting. It increases seed capacities up to 93 bushels. It narrows IN-LINE transport width to just 11'2" with KINZE's popular Twin-Line toolbar design. It gives producers the ability to add an Interplant option by placing KINZE's patented push row units on the front of the toolbar (for 23 or 24 and 31 or 32 rows at 15" spacing)... OR, you can select a Liquid Fertilizer Package with piston pump and a choice of three fertilizer opener packages.*

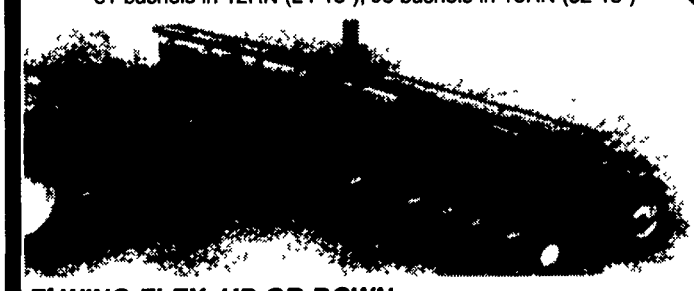
HOW DOES IT WORK?
Inside twin bulk seed hoppers, nylon bristle-tipped, adjustable-speed augers slowly elevate seed from the bottom of the hopper to a full-length PVC pipe distribution manifold located at the top The manifold feeds all rows through molded plastic drop collars The manifold is rotated to shut off distribution to the front for planting 30" rows only. By feeding front and rear rows from the top of the bulk hopper, it ensures constant seed flow (with less see in the hopper) and lowers the center of gravity And power requirements are minimal Only 2 gpm @ 750 psi are required to turn the augers at 25-125 rpm to meet seed demand

RUGGED MINI-HOPPERS
The seed meters are mounted on molded, high density polyethylene mini-hoppers on each row unit The hoppers are fed via 3" (I D) wire-reinforced translucent hoses Seed capacity in each mini-hopper and drop hose is approximately 1/4 bushel



*61 bushels in 12RN (24-15"); 93 bushels in 16RN (32-15")

FAST LOADING
A full length platform gives you easy access, gas-filled shock absorbers assist with the hinged lids Also, note how the transport wheels are pushed, providing better residue flow, better visibility of rear rows units from the tractor seat and seat and better access for filling the bulk seed hopper.



3650 Twin-Line®
12 Row N (30")

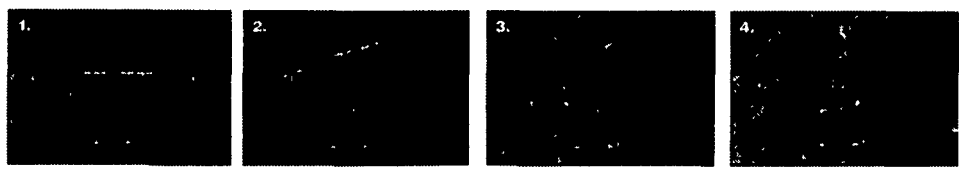
AUGER SPEED CONTROL
Two centrally mounted hydraulic motors, plumbed in series and operated from a third selective control valve, power the auger system Flow control valve allows the operator to adjust auger speed

7° WING FLEX, UP OR DOWN
Four row (12RN) and six row (16RN) wing sections, hinged to a four-row center section, flex up to 7° (up or down) and are hydraulically locked for transport. The two bulk seed hoppers pivot in conjunction with the 3-section frame as it flexes. Full-length, internal 2"x6" tubing provides structural support.

PATENTED TWIN-LINE® TRANSPORT SYSTEM... 11'2" TRANSPORT WIDTHS
You have complete electric, hydraulic control of the markers, point row clutches and folding and unfolding functions from the tractor seat



KINZE

BULK FILL!
More capacity. Less time Loading —more time for planting.

ONLY 9 WEEKS UNTIL THE 2003 PA FARM SHOW!

Did You Know:

Did you know that 185,012 of the 2.16 million farms in the US are operated by women*?

Did you know that Case-IH, John Deere, New Holland, and Agco companies will have displays at the new 2003 PA Farm Show facilities?

Do you know what percent of income is spent on food consumed at home in the United States?

See our ad next week for the answer!

GEHL®

PROVEN

Gehl's Scavenger® Spreader delivers the performance you need year after year, with increased durability and outstanding application control. All thanks to the following features.

- Heavy-duty round core auger with segmented paddles to blend manure. Powered both up and down to ram through heavy loads and break up bridging.
- Special "V" tank design to handle solid, heavy bedded, semi-solid, self-leveling and liquid manure.
- Adjustable auger and expeller speeds spread more types of manure.
- Variflow™ discharge featuring square-tooth expeller paddles for smooth, even spreading at the rate you choose.

Cash Rebates up to $1,500

Gehl Round Balers

More Bales in Less Time. Any Questions?

- Equipped with Variable Open Throat Power In-Feed system to help you save time and money
- Total Density Control (TDC®) system packs more material into every bale
- Three control systems to choose from
- Optional Quickwrap™ net wrap attachment
- Power In-Feed system opens to nearly 7" for large crop volume
- Optional crowder wheels provide increased pick-up width for feeding the sides of the baler

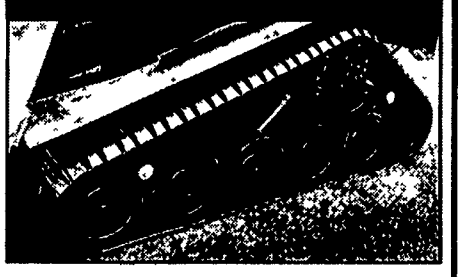
YOUR NEXT SKID STEER MIGHT NOT BE A SKID STEER

POSI-TRACK™ R-SERIES

The RC•50, R•50 and RC•30 are an advanced breed of compact machine - the All Surface Loader.

Twenty-four rubber wheels spread machine weight over a large ground contact area, so these machines exert very low ground pressure - ideal on landscapes or soft conditions.



Compact size and revolutionary rubber-track undercarriage allows you to outwork traditional equipment in almost any terrain or application. The R-Series All Surface Loaders are at home in tough excavating jobs as well as on sensitive terrains such as lawns and asphalt.

Add the full range of versatile attachments, easy operation, and rugged uni-body construction for a one-machine work force ready to tackle most any job and most any ground condition.

Match A Spreader To Your Needs

Without Yourself Too Thin

Get Unmatched Flexibility At A Great Price.

With eight sizes to choose from and a wide variety of options, it's easy to see how the New Idea® 3700 Series Spreaders meet the needs of any operation. Their aggressive, main beater paddles are strategically spaced and angled to shred a wide range of material while giving you a consistent spread pattern.

Culvert-grade galvanizing over one-piece, copper-bearing steel sides provide a barrier against rust and corrosion. And for hauling long distances, the truck-mount option proves to be the safest, most economical way to transport large amounts of material.

To see how simple it is to customize your spreading operation, contact your AGCO® New Idea dealer today. You'll be surprised how much time and money you'll save with the New Idea 3700 Series Spreaders.

STRETCH your Hay

Nine Reasons to Own The Vermeer BP7000

1. Helps stretch last season's crop through another winter
2. Increases palatability, improves feeding efficiency, reduces hay losses by letting you get more fed hay out of each bale. And, it blows away the mold and mildew.
3. Gives all your cows an equal chance at feeding time. And, it handles your high-density or frozen bales with ease
4. Reduces the manure handling and hauling hassles that go with round bale ring feeding systems
5. Processes the bales directly into feed bunks, along fencelines, or open range. Spreads straw up to 50 feet wide to create a thick mat of bedding for your calves.
6. Great time saver. Feeds out a 6' x 5' bale in two minutes or less. Standard machine carries two bales or add a Vermeer Bale Mover to haul eight 5-ft.-wide bales
7. Top-dresses with the new Vermeer Grain Tank Option.
8. Optional flotation tires available for improved mobility in muddy conditions.
9. Great limited time financing program!

Our Customers #1 Reasons...

"It definitely cut down on my hay consumption"
—Rick Ridge of Grant City, MO

"The cows clean up every bit of the hay off the ground"
—Duane LaFarge of Ft.Scott, KS

I believe you save about 20% on your hay"
—Gary Croton of Shannon, KS

Everlast is stronger.

Everlast makes metal roofs and sides that are substantially stronger than it's competition. Everlast II does not buckle as easy during erection, less popping and buckling while walking on it. Higher wind and snow loads. More attractive.

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?
Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb.
from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds

- Features grower-to-grower direct seed sales
- S D S U tested and researched
- Distributed from Parkesburg, PA
- $1 55/per lb in 60 lb. bags
- Varieties· S D. Common, Vernal, and Rhyzoma
- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at "2" and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed
